Putnam House, Auburn, Placer County, Cal.

This House is situated in one of the finest spots in Auburn, all surrounded by shrubbery and trees, and only about three hundred yards from Central Pacific R. R. Depot. It was purchased by the present proprietor a little over three years ago, when it was only about half furnished, and being only a little over six years old altogether, the furniture is almost new, and the proprietor managing the House to a great extent himself, assisted by members of his own family, is enabled to give such low rates as from $1.50 to $2.00 per day, and guests will find that the accommodations are as good, if not better, than houses charging much higher rates. The 'bus will be at all passenger trains, east and west, to convey guests to the House free of charge. The 'bus also runs from the House to the old town of Auburn, several times a-day, free to guests of the House. Please give the House a trial and convince yourself.

EMIGRANTS AND TOURISTS!

There is a great demand for laborers to work on the Railroads in Oregon, Washington Territory and British Columbia. The new and rich Gold and Coal Mines in Sitka and British Columbia are attracting thousands of people there.

Santa Cruz is a lovely town and popular watering place. It is only about eight hours' ride from San Francisco. Monterey is the old capital of the State, and is celebrated for its old adobe buildings, the Mission, the Methodists' camping grounds, and many other noted things and places.

Tourists in search of pleasure, and invalids in search of health, will find no country that can supply their wants as can Southern California. The medicinal virtues of the Paso Robles Hot Springs are universally acknowledged. For rheumatism, gout, neuralgia, liver complaint, impure blood, etc., they have no rival in the world.

Santa Barbara and Santa Monica are celebrated watering places. The fame of the orange groves of Los Angeles is world-wide. The consumptive who sojourns in San Diego takes a new lease of life.

Rates of Fare, which include meals and sleeping accommodations, are lower by this than by any other route. Through tickets sold to all the principal places on the coast. Stages and railroads make close connection with steamers for all the principal places in the interior.

SPECIAL DEPARTMENT

DEVOTED TO THE

ADVERTISEMENTS

OF THE LEADING

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES

OF

THE SAN DIEGO COLLEGE.

OPEN TO BOTH SEXES—NON-SECTARIAN.

The First Term will Begin the Last Thursday in September.

The College buildings, now in course of construction, are located near the center of Pacific Beach, on an elevated site overlooking the ocean, mountain, bay, and in full view of San Diego. The climate is almost perfection. The average temperature the most equable of which any knowledge exists. The prevailing winds being from the ocean, while the drainage is towards the bay, make it free from contagion of any kind. The beach for driving and bathing, the bay for yachting and fishing, the Agricultural Park for ball playing, forms a combination for out-door amusements that students will find unequaled anywhere.

The East Building has been completed. It affords special advantages to young lady students. Each student will have an alcove suite, with fire place and every modern convenience. The boarding and table service will be in keeping with the fine equipments of the building.

THE CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC.

This branch of the College will be arranged particularly with reference to the furtherance of these latter ideas as well as to the teaching of the art of music. The building devoted to this branch of study will be erected about a hundred feet in the rear and a little to one side, in proximity to the dormitory set apart for the use of the young ladies. It will be octagonal in form, arranged in piano rooms on the outer edge, all opening into a large room in the center, which will be circular, with sides made of glass, and which will be the preceptor's room, where he can observe the movements of his pupils, who can thus practice without the crude notes of the beginners interfering with the advanced pupils. A particular feature is to be made of the musical department, and only the most competent instructors will be employed.

BOARDING AND OTHER FACILITIES.

Arrangements will be completed, before the opening of the school, to provide homes for all students who desire the advantages offered by dormitories with every convenience. The boys' dormitory will be on one side of the central building, while the girls' will be on the other. The plans of the building provide for sun-light in every room, and the apartments are arranged in suites, with separate closets and other conveniences seldom obtained. Each dormitory will be under the charge of a resident member of the faculty, and will be conducted in an ideal home-like manner.

MORAL TRAINING.

The character of the school will be essentially non-sectarian, but the development of character, and the training of students to be useful men and women, will be the aim of all the instructors.

THE DEPARTMENTS OF STUDY.

These for the first year will be seven at least, and will comprise the School of Mathematics, the School of Language and Literature, the School of Natural Science, the School of Mental and Moral Philosophy, the School of Music, the School of Art, the School of Technical Arts, which will include instruction in mechanical arts, painting, agriculture, gardening, fruit growing, silk culture, etc.

THE FACULTY

Will be be complete in every department. The President of the Faculty will be S. SPRECHER, D. D., LL. D.

TUITION.

Students will be received at reasonable rates, in the preparatory department or any of the collegiate classes. Students should apply for admission at as early date as possible.

For further particulars apply to

HARR WAGNER, Secretary,

San Diego College Co., San Diego, Cal.

Or

C. S. SPRECHER, A. M., President.

Dixon Academy and Business College

DEPARTMENTS INCLUDE A

PREPARATORY, TEACHER'S, SCIENTIFIC, CLASSICAL AND BUSINESS COURSE.

The design of this School is to impart a thorough practical education, adapted to the wants of the farmer, the mechanic, the merchant, the banker, the speculator, or the teacher, and the qualification of persons of both sexes for the varied activities, concerns and duties of a business nature, which are comprised in the current affairs of public or private life.

Total cost for Board, Lodging and Tuition

$20.00 per Month

SCHOOL FOR GIRLS AND YOUNG LADIES

This School was founded in the Autumn of 1872 by Miss Harriet N. Field. It was intended to meet the demand for a School which should give its pupils, while acquiring a thorough education, the advantages of a highly cultured Christian home. It is Christian, but not sectarian. Its aim has always been to combine with careful mental training, the best physical, social and religious development.

The School, on the corner of Telegraph Avenue and Knox Place, is beautifully located, commanding an extended view of the foot-hills and the surrounding country. There is a fine lawn in front, and a large playground in the rear of the building. The main building, three stories high, contains the parlors, reception room, a well-furnished library (to which the pupils have free access) the music rooms, young ladies' room, dining-room and kitchen. The school building contains the assembly room, and the recitation rooms of the academic department.

The two cottages contain, beside family rooms, the preparatory rooms, the laboratory, and the classroom for the sciences. From the main building to the first cottage extends a long, covered walk which furnishes a good place for a promenade in rainy weather.

The gymnasium is of good size and has sufficient apparatus to make physical exercise a pleasure. Particular attention is given to the preservation of health and to physical training.

The studio, which is in the main building, contains a goodly number of casts and other aids to art study.

The seminary has a large collection of minerals and zoological specimens.

The school is well equipped in every department. The corps of sixteen teachers is of the ablest. The course of study is that of the best seminaries of the East. Special attention is paid to English throughout the entire course, by studying, reading the best authors, and by composition. Even the advanced classes devote much time to these branches. The school prepares for the University of California and for Eastern Colleges. There is no extra charge for Latin. The best instructors give lessons in French, German, Spanish, Painting, Drawing, Instrumental and Vocal Music.

The school has a large patronage, and has won, by its thoroughness and good work in all departments, a high reputation.

The Three-Year Curriculum is adopted by this College; attendance upon three regular courses —at least one in this institution—being obligatory.

A Matriculating Examination, or other evidence of the possession of a fair education, will be required on entering.

The Regular Course commences on the first Monday in June of each year, and continues until November. It is thus a Summer Course, contrary to general usage

The Intermediate Course commences early in January of each year, and continues nearly four months. It is a great assistance as a preparatory step to the Regular Course, and as offering the fullest opportunities for the prosecution of dissection. Although attendance upon this course is not obligatory, it is earnestly recommended that all attend it who can possibly do so.

Should any further information be desired, it may be obtained by application, in person or by letter, to

INTRODUCTION.

THIS, the first issue of the CALIFORNIA STATE GAZETTEER AND BUSINESS DIRECTORY, will, we are confident, merit the approval of business men and the public generally.

Every effort has been made to secure useful and reliable information, and, on examination, the work will be found creditable alike to the state and ourselves as publishers.

The work contains 1734 pages, the earlier portion being devoted to descriptive and statistical matter relating to the state, followed by the alphabetical list of postoffices, giving a descriptive sketch of each place and the names of all business or professional firms located there. These sketches have been given with a view to afford useful information to business men, rather than to eulogize the merits or attractions of the different localities.

Following the alphabetical list is the classified directory, giving under proper headings the names of all the business and professional men in the state; and while we have not been able to obtain as full lists of some of the callings as we could desire, the large majority will be found full and complete. The lists alluded to as not complete are apiarists, fruit growers, live-stock dealers, and mining companies. Shortcomings of this nature we shall remedy in our next issue, which we intend shall be the most complete and valuable work of the class ever issued in this state. Our aim is, as it has always been, no matter at what labor or expense, to be the publishers of STANDARD WORKS only.

With sincere thanks to the press of the state for their cordial and unanimous indorsement of the work, as well as to our patrons for their very liberal support, we remain,

Respectfully,

R. L. POLK & CO.

COUNTIES OF CALIFORNIA.

ALAMEDA.

Alameda county is situated on the eastern shore of San Francisco bay, six miles from San Francisco. It has an area of 737 square miles. In wealth and population it ranks third of the counties. Its population, according to the census of 1880, was 69,976, but it is now estimated at 80,000. Oakland, the county seat, is noted for its handsome streets and gardens, and its many churches and schools. It furnishes suburban homes for many San Franciscans, as it is connected with the metropolis by two lines of ferries. Other large towns are Alameda, Berkeley, the seat of the State University, and Livermore. The county consists mainly of gently rolling foothill land, admirably adapted to fruit and the vine. Its wheat-fields are rapidly being converted into orchards and vineyards. Oakland is one of the great shipping-points for green fruit to the East, as well as the seat of large manufactures. The county produces all kinds of fruit and garden produce, wheat, barley, hay, and sugar-beets. Its assessed valuation in 1887 was $58,197,743.

ALPINE.

Alpine county is one of the extreme eastern counties, bordering on Nevada, and in the heart of the Sierras. It contains 882 square miles, but its cultivated lands comprise less than 1,000 acres. Population, according to the census of 1880, was 539. The surface is broken by high mountains, amid which are many beautiful valleys. The western part is extremely wild, and is used mainly for pasture of cattle and sheep. Markleeville, the county seat, is on the Carson river, and is the center of a good mining country. Vast forests of fir, tamarack, pine and spruce form the chief wealth. Lumbering, dairying and mining are the main pursuits. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $291,080.

AMADOR.

Amador county is one of the foothill counties, in the eastern part of the state, stretching from Alpine on the east to Sacramento and San Joaquin on the west; its area is 565 square miles, and its population estimated at 18,000. The census of 1880 gave it 11,384. Jackson is the county seat, — a city of 2,500 people. The surface of the county is rugged, and mining has always been the chief industry. For many years the county ranked high for mineral production, and the gold output now averages $2,000,000 yearly. Much attention has been devoted lately to agriculture and fruit-growing, the soil being especially adapted to all kinds of fruit. There has been a large increase in acreage of fruit-trees and vines within two years. Experiment has shown that soil and climate are favorable to the raisin grape. The assessed valuation for 1887 was $4,322,326.

BUTTE.

Butte county lies on the east side of the great Sacramento valley, between the Feather and Sacramento rivers; it has an area of 1,765 square miles, and a population of 30,000; census of 1880 gave population of 18,384. Chico, the chief city, lies in the center of a rich country, and is noted for its many handsome residences, and the Rancho Chico of General Bidwell, the greatest fruit-farm in the state; it is also the seat of the new Normal School for northern California. Oroville, the county seat, is the center of a rapidly growing fruit section, where the orange grows to perfection. About one third of the county is rich alluvial river bottoms, devoted to wheat and barley, but many of these fields, as well as the foothills, are being converted into orchards and vineyards. Grain-growing is still the leading source of wealth; but within three years fruit-raising has taken great strides, and in 1886 there were no less than 115,873 fruit-trees. Last year many thousand orange-trees were planted around Oroville. Mining and stock-raising are also profitable industries. The assessed valuation for 1887 was $16,003,071.

CALAVERAS.

Calaveras, a foothill county, just south of Amador and east of San Joaquin, has an area of 971 square miles, and an estimated population of 9,500; the census of 1880 gave the population as 9,094. The county seat is San Andreas, the center of a rich mining region. Other towns are Milton, Copperopolis, Murphy's, and Angel's. Calaveras is pre-eminently a mining county, and its placers were among the richest in California in early days. Now quartz-mining is extensively carried on. Besides gold, there are rich deposits of copper, iron, coal and marble, all of which will repay working when the cost of transportation is reduced. The county is also rich in timber, the yearly product being 5,000,000 feet of fine lumber and 2,000,000 shingles. Like the other old mining counties, fruit-growing and agriculture are gaining ground every year. Many of the choicest fruits flourish well in these foothill valleys. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $4,171,221.

COLUSA.

Colusa county lies in the heart of the great Sacramento valley; it stretches from the river on the east to the Coast range on the west, and is the banner wheat county of California or of the United States. Its area is 2,300 square miles, mainly rich alluvial land. Its population is estimated at 20,000; the census of 1880 gives 13,118. Colusa, the county seat, is a city of 2,500 people, the center of immense grain ranches. Other towns are Willows, noted for the beauty of its homes, Orland, Germantown, Maxwell and Arbuckle. The valley land is so rich that the county has a record in many years of 10,000,000 bushels of wheat. The land was formerly held in great ranches, the most famous of which is the Glenn ranch, that follows the Sacramento for seventeen miles; but many of these are now being cut up, and orchards are taking the place of grain-fields. In the western part, stock-raising and lumbering are pursued. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $21,623,750.

CONTRA COSTA.

Contra Costa lies across the bay from San Francisco, and adjoins Alameda, its northern boundary being the San Joaquin river and the bays that form the mouth of the Sacramento. Its area is 734 square miles, of which fully one half is cultivated. Its population is estimated at 15,500; the census of 1880 gives 12,525. The county seat, Martinez, is on the line of the Central Pacific, and looks over the beautiful Suisun bay. Other growing towns are Antioch, Brentwood, Byron Springs, and Port Costa, the seat of the greatest wheat warehouses in California. The county is divided by the Coast range, the great feature of which is Mt. Diablo, the highest point of the range, 3,896 above sea-level. Agriculture is the chief pursuit, and wheat the main product, although fruit and garden vegetables are rapidly nearing grain in value. Soil and climate are well adapted to all fruits and vines, while the olive flourishes on the hill lands, once regarded as fit for nothing but the wild oat. All along the shore at many points are large factories, while at the docks at Port Costa is loaded eighty per cent of the wheat ships. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $13,920,586.

DEL NORTE.

Del Norte county is the extreme northwest corner of the state, with the Pacific on the west and Oregon on the northern boundary; its area is 1,546 square miles. The estimated population in 1887 was 3,500; census of 1880 gave 2,584. Crescent City, the county seat, is on the coast, and near by are valuable mines of gold-bearing black sand. Other important towns are Smith River, Altaville, Gasquet, and Happy Camp. The surface of the county is broken by mountains, and only about one third is capable of cultivation. The mountains, however, are covered by some of the finest redwood, pine, spruce and fir in the state. Lumbering, dairying and mining are leading industries. When the Klamath Indian reservation is thrown open, a great stimulus will be given to the lumbering interest in the heavily timbered country along the river banks. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $1,228,336.

EL DORADO.

El Dorado county, one of the oldest and richest of the foothill mining counties, extends from Sacramento county on the west to the state line of Nevada on the east. Its area is 1,890 square miles, and its population, given by the census of 1880 as 10,683, is now estimated at 12,000. Placerville, the county seat, is in the center of a once rich mining country, but now devoted to almost equally profitable fruit-growing and agriculture; it once ranked among the leading cities of California. Coloma, once the county seat, is celebrated as the place where gold was first discovered, in Sutter's mill-race. The country rises by gradual ascent from the Sacramento valley region to the Sierras, crowned by snow the year round. All the western part, consisting of fertile plains and foothills, is especially adapted to fruit, and within five years a great area has been planted to the choicest varieties. Besides agriculture and fruit-growing, for which the system of mining-ditches furnishes ample irrigation when required, mining is still carried on extensively. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $3,283,690.

FRESNO.

Fresno county lies midway in the great San Joaquin valley, between Merced and Mariposa on the north and Tulare on the south. It is the third largest county in the state, having an area of 8,093 square miles. Its population, given by the 1880 census as 9,478, has increased enormously within the last five years, and is now estimated at 25,000, while the yearly increase is fully 4,000. Fresno, the county seat, is in the geographical center, and is the seat of the greatest raisin-producing section in the United States. Other large towns are Madera, Huron, Kingsburg, and Selma. Two thirds of the county is level as a barn floor, with soil of inexhaustible fertility. Here an elaborate system of irrigating canals has converted thousands of acres into one great vineyard of raisin grapes. While other fruits are less profitable than the grape, they are largely cultivated for drying and canning. The irrigating canals are capable of watering one thousand square miles, and this capacity can be increased. Besides all the ordinary agricultural products, Fresno produces a large amount of alfalfa, honey, sorghum, sweet potatoes and Egyptian corn. In the eastern part of the county are some of the loftiest peaks of the high Sierras, rising more than 14,000 feet above sea-level. The mountain slopes are clothed with the finest growth of redwood and sugar pine. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $16,441,783.

HUMBOLDT.

Humboldt county lies along the Pacific coast, directly south of Del Norte. Its area is 4,093 square miles, and its population, given by the census of 1880 as 15,512, is now 25,000. Eureka, the county seat, is on Humboldt bay, the best harbor between San Francisco and Puget Sound, and has a population of 8,000. Other towns are Arcata, Trinidad, Rohnerville and Ferndale. The surface of Humboldt is extremely rugged, being broken by many spurs of the Coast range, and it has several navigable streams, chief of which are the Klamath and Trinity rivers. More than 450,000 acres are covered with the heaviest growth of redwood in the state, while there are 200,000 acres of pine, cedar, spruce and fir. The timber yet uncut amounts to more than the entire timber reserve of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. Naturally lumbering is the chief industry. Lumber exports for 1887 were 104,519,726 feet. Only about 30,000 acres are under cultivation, but Humboldt grain, potatoes, and fruit are well known for superior quality. Mining is extensively carried on in the northern part, and shipbuilding and stock-raising are sources of wealth. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $12,721,628.

INYO.

Inyo county is situated at the extreme east of the state, with the Sierras for a western boundary, has an area of 10,156 square miles, the greater part being mountainous land. It is shut off from the rest of the state by the enormous mountain chain of which the highest peak is Mt. Whitney, 14,887 feet above sea-level. Its population, given by the 1880 census as 2,928, has now increased to about 4,000. Independence, the county seat, is in the midst of a rich mining country. Only a few thousand acres in Owens valley are under cultivation, but large irrigating projects are now under way, which will convert the sagebrush desert into fertile fields. Mining has always been the chief source of wealth, but large deposits of borax and soda are worked in Death valley, and a vast quarry of the purest marble. The Carson and Colorado railroad now furnishes transportation, which was formerly lacking. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $1,197,369.

KERN.

Kern county lies at the southern end of the San Joaquin valley, and has Tulare to the north and Los Angeles and Ventura to the south. Its area is about 8,100 square miles, and its population, put at 5,601 by the census of 1880, now numbers 8,000.

Bakersfield, the county seat, is in the Kern valley, and has many fine public buildings. About one third the county is rich agricultural land, capable of raising any crop with irrigation, that is furnished by ditches or artesian wells. The Kern river furnishes water for a series of canals that cost not less than $5,000,000. Alfalfa is largely raised for feed, and the raising of cattle, horses, sheep and hogs forms the main industry. All agricultural products grow with tropical luxuriance, and fruit-raising is beginning to attract attention. Other industries are lumbering and quartz-mining. The assessed valuation for 1887 was $6,313,920.

LAKE.

Lake county is shut in between two ridges of the Coast range, with mountains also to north and south, and with Clear lake, 25 miles long by 6 wide, Lake county bears away the palm for picturesque scenery. It is one of the Central California counties, with an area of about 1,078 square miles, and a population now estimated at 8,150; census report of 1880 gives 6,596. Lakeport, the county seat, is on Clear lake, and is the center of a good trade. The country is very broken, but the valleys are extremely fertile. Large quantities of wheat, barley, oats, corn, potatoes and hops are grown, while many sheep and hogs are raised. Fruit-growing is also increasing, the county being especially adapted to the winter apple. There are also mines of quicksilver. The county has many popular tourist resorts, as it has a dozen mineral springs, famous for their waters. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $2,982,632.

LASSEN.

Lassen county is situated far to the north, adjoining the state of Nevada. It has an area of 4,750 square miles, of which fully three quarters is mountains. Its population in 1880 was returned as 3,340, but is now estimated at 5,000. The county seat is Susanville, in Honey Lake valley, at an elevation of 4,184 feet above the sea-level. Despite the high altitude the climate is not severe. The leading industries are stock-raising and lumbering. The mountain grasses are peculiarly nutritious, and large herds graze in a country so rough that it would be the despair of the cattlemen of the plains. The foothills are covered with valuable forests of sugar and yellow pine, cedar and fir. Fruit-growing is receiving much attention. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $2,365,644.

LOS ANGELES.

Los Angeles county has a shore-line of 90 miles on the Pacific, but the greater part of the county lies inland. It is just south of Kern county, and is cut off from the north by a spur of the Sierras. It is the most famous of the Southern California counties, and is in the heart of the semi-tropical belt. Its area is 4,812½ square miles, and its population, given as only 33,381 in 1880, has increased by the unexampled immigration from the East to 95,000, making it the second county in population and assessable wealth in the state. Los Angeles, the county seat, is the second city in the state, and claims 65,000 people; it covers an area of 36 square miles, but most of the houses are surrounded by large gardens. Its trade is large, as it is the natural railroad center for southern California, and is surrounded by colonies, where many wealthy people have made their homes. Large towns immediately about Los Angeles are Pasadena, Santa Ana, Orange and Tustin, while thriving colonies are Pomona and Anaheim. The whole county within a radius of twenty miles of Los Angeles has been converted into colonies and villas. Orange and grape growing, wine-making, market-gardening and general agriculture form the chief industries, while the tourist business adds largely to the wealth of the county. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $92,796,666, while that of 1866 was only $37,560,880.

MARIN.

Marin county lies between the Pacific ocean and San Francisco bay; it has an extensive coast line; it is northeast from San Francisco, and is bounded to the north and east by Sonoma county. Its area is 509 square miles, and its population, given as 11,324 in the census of 1880, is now estimated at 15,000. San Rafael, the county seat, is one of the prettiest of the suburban resorts about San Francisco bay, and is the home of many rich people. It has many beautiful residences, and will soon have a great hotel. Other towns are Sausalito, Nicasio and Tomales, while a dozen new suburban resorts have sprung up near San Rafael and Sausalito. The county is noted for its large dairy ranches, that stretch along the shore of the Pacific, and its butter and cheese command high prices. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $9,863,526.

MARIPOSA.

Mariposa county is situated between Tuolumne and Fresno. This county is celebrated as containing the Yosemite valley and the Mariposa grove of big trees. Its area is 1,543 square miles, and its population is estimated at 7,500; the census of 1880 gives 4,339. The county seat, Mariposa, lies 45 miles from the Southern Pacific railroad, and is reached by stages. Other towns are Hornitos, Coulterville and Clark's. The surface of the eastern half is extremely rugged and covered by heavy forests of redwood and pine. The western half consists of foothills and plains, which are immensely productive when irrigated. Mining is still the chief industry, many valuable quartz mines being worked. Lumbering, agriculture and stock-raising are profitable, and fruit-growing is receiving attention. The assessed valuation for 1887 was $1,624,913.

MENDOCINO.

Mendocino county borders on the Pacific ocean for 130 miles. This county lies just south of Humboldt, and is 100 miles north of San Francisco. Its area is 3,562 square miles, and its population, given in the census of 1880 as 12,800, is now estimated at 18,000. Ukiah, the county seat, lies in a valley of the same name, and is noted as a health resort. Other towns are Covelo, Point Arena, Westport and Mendocino city. The county is divided by mountain ridges into a number of valleys, all fertile and well watered. Extending all along the coast, and for an average width of fifteen miles, is the great redwood belt, which is second only in size and value to that of Humboldt county. The chief industries are lumbering, dairying, sheep-raising and general agriculture. The potato crop is an important source of wealth. The assessed valuation for 1887 was $9,270,491.

MERCED.

Merced county is situated in the heart of the San Joaquin valley, between Stanislaus and Fresno. This has long been known as one of the greatest wheat counties of California. Its area is 1,968 square miles, and its population, reported in 1880 by the United States census as 5,646, is now put down at 9,000. The county seat is Merced, which has many fine public buildings. Most of the land in the county is plain or foothill. It is watered by the San Joaquin and Merced rivers, which furnish facilities for irrigation. The county boasts of the largest irrigating ditch in this country, the Merced Canal, which is 29 miles long, and terminates in a huge reservoir of 640 acres, five miles from Merced city. It will irrigate 300,000 acres, and it cost $2,500,000. Wheat and barley have long been the staple products, being grown without irrigation, but many acres have recently been planted to fruit and vines, and with irrigation these will prove far more profitable than grain. Stock-raising is also carried on in the foothills. The assessed valuation for 1887 was $10,800,014.

MODOC.

Modoc county lies at the far northeast corner of the state. It has an area of 4,296 square miles. The population is now about 8,000, but the census of 1880 gave it 4,399. Alturas, the county seat, lies at the meeting of the north and south forks of Pitt river, and is the center of a large trade. The surface is broken, more than half the area consisting of mountainous land, while a great tract, 100 miles by 60, in the northeastern part, is covered by the lava-beds, and is fit only for grazing. Stock-raising is the chief pursuit, and large herds are driven annually out of the mountains. Dairying and lumbering also are important industries. Only lack of rail communication prevents Modoc from being a fine grain and agricultural country. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $2,782,595.

MONO.

Mono county extends along the boundary between Nevada and California, with Inyo county to the south. Its area is 2,796 square miles. The estimated population is 3,500, while the census of 1880 gives 7,499. The decrease is due to changes wrought by mining excitement, but the steady growth of the last few years is of the class that makes homes, and remains. The surface is extremely mountainous, and mining has always been the chief industry. The eastern part is composed of alkali plains, interspersed with salt-pools and volcanic remains. The lower foothills are covered with a heavy growth of sugar and yellow pine. Bodie, the largest town, was once the center of extraordinarily rich mines. Of late these mines have been reopened, and the bullion yield last year was over a half million dollars. Cheap transportation is all that is needed to cause a general revival of mining in many long-deserted camps. Lumbering and stock-mining are also important industries. The assessed valuation for 1887 is $1,012,119.

MONTEREY.

Monterey county, situated on the coast south of Santa Cruz and north of San Luis Obispo, contains 3,328 square miles; its population is estimated at over 20,000, though by the census of 1880 it was placed at 11,302. Salinas city is the county seat and largest town, other places being Monterey, Castroville, Pajaro, Soledad and Gonzales. Monterey is one of the leading cereal-producing counties in the state, nearly half a million acres being annually sown to grain. Through the center of the Salinas valley runs the Salinas river, which empties into the ocean at Moss Landing, the seaport of Castroville. The Pajaro valley, a portion of which is in Santa Cruz county, is watered by the Pajaro river. Its soil is very rich, and particularly well adapted for the growth of fruits and vegetables, especially sugar-beets. The Carmel valley, in which is located the Mission of San Carlos, also contains considerable arable land. Farming, wool-growing, and stock-raising constitute the chief industries of the county. Monterey, the former capital of the state, is one of the principal watering places on the Pacific coast. It has many places of historic interest, and the scenery in the vicinity is very picturesque. About a mile east of the old town is the Hotel Del Monte, built by the Southern Pacific Company, one of the finest seaside hotels in America. Pacific Grove Retreat, near by, is also a popular summer resort. The assessed valuation of the county in 1887 was $12,869,225.

NAPA.

Napa county is in the central part of the state, with Lake county on the north and San Pablo bay on the south. It is over fifty miles long, by from thirty to thirty-five miles wide, and has an area of 789 square miles. The population, according to the United States census of 1880, was 13,234, but it is now estimated at 20,000. Napa City, the county seat, is on the Napa river, in a beautiful section, and has many substantial buildings. Other important towns are St. Helena, the center of a rich wine-making district, and Calistoga, a famous health resort. The soil of Napa, largely made of volcanic remains, is peculiarly adapted to the choicest wine grapes, and the county stands at the head for the quality of its fine wines. There are now over 15,000 acres planted to wine grapes, and the yearly increase is from 500 to 1,000 acres. Of fruit-trees there are also nearly 300,000, the olive having been largely planted on the hill lands. Some of the largest wine-cellars in the state are in the neighborhood of St. Helena. The county produces one third of all the wine made in California, and its main valley — the Napa — for a distance of thirty miles is almost one continuous vineyard. The other products are wheat, oats, barley, hay and quicksilver. It has many mineral springs, popular as health resorts, and its climate is unsurpassed for equability. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $12,418,912.

NEVADA.

Nevada county is one of diversified topography, gradually rising from the level of the upper Sacramento valley to the summit of the Sierra, on the eastern border of the state; its area is 1,125 square miles. In 1880 the population was 20,823, but it has now increased to 30,000. Nevada City, a city of about 7,000 inhabitants, is the county seat. Grass Valley, Colfax, and North San Juan are other important places. In the eastern or mountainous part of the county lumbering is the chief industry; in the central section gold-mining is prosecuted on an extensive scale, while the less elevated lands are devoted to grazing and the raising of grain and fruit. The quartz and drift mines of this county are steadily productive, though the suspension of hydraulic mining caused a period of dullness; the yield of the precious metal is now increasing, the quartz being worked with gratifying success. The many lumber-mills along the Truckee river send to market in the neighborhood of 35,000,000 feet annually. All kinds of fruit, including oranges, are grown in the county. It is a peculiarity of this county that it produces the finest Bartlett pears grown in the state, and the acreage in this fruit is very large. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $5,459,685.

PLACER.

Placer county is long and narrow, extending to the summit of the Sierras and running down within a few miles of the Sacramento river, embracing 1,429 square miles of valley, foothill and mountain lands, and possessing resources extremely varied in nature. The population, rated at 14,232 in 1880, is now about 25,000. Auburn, a thrifty town of 2,000 inhabitants, is the county seat. Rocklin, Penryn, Newcastle, Dutch Flat, Alta, Cisco and Summit are other places of importance. All of these towns are on the line of the Central Pacific railroad, the station at Summit being 7,017 feet above the sea. The resources of Placer are extremely varied. All kinds of fruit, from apples to oranges, are shipped to all parts of the state and to the East; millions of feet of lumber are annually exported; the chief granite quarries of California are here, and the gold mines, from which at least $35,000,000 have been extracted, are still far from exhausted. As attractions for the tourist, Placer boasts of Donner Lake, Soda Springs, and Lake Tahoe. Irrigation is practiced to a considerable extent, abandoned mining-ditches being used to conduct the waters of the Bear river to the lower lands. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $6,623,905.

PLUMAS.

Plumas county is one of the chain of mountain counties, and is bounded by Shasta, Lassen, Butte and Tehama; its area is 2,656 square miles; in 1880 the population was 6,180, and is now about 8,000; Quincy is the county seat; Laporte, Meadow Valley and Taylorville are other towns. Although situated among the Sierra Nevadas, containing several lofty peaks, and noted for its picturesque scenery, Plumas embraces many sheltered valleys of rich alluvial soil, and well-watered grassy meadows, supporting a prosperous agricultural community. Mining, however, as in the earlier days of California, is still the most profitable industry. The American valley and the Mountain meadows are noted for their succulent vegetation, and in dry seasons furnish a grazing-ground for stockmen from other counties. The north and middle forks of the Feather river take their rise in this county, and in winter rush in torrents to join the Sacramento. The resources of Plumas are in large measure undeveloped, yet the salubrious climate and productive soil of its elevated valleys, as well as its hidden mineral wealth, are attracting a constantly increasing tide of immigration. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $2,231,514.

SACRAMENTO.

Sacramento county — a quadrangular-shaped county with an area of 968 square miles — is situated nearly in the geographical center of the state, of which its county seat, Sacramento, is the capital. The population was 34,390 in 1880, and is now about 50,000. Nearly the entire area of the county consists of rich valley lands, through which flow the Sacramento, American and Cosumnes rivers. The former stream, the largest in the state, is lined with extensive orchards, and the annual product of fruits is not excelled by any other county. The vineyards are constantly increasing in extent; the shipments of grain and hay are extensive. In 1887 the assessor's returns showed 4,525,500 grape-vines, 484,045 fruit-trees, and 113,025 acres sown to wheat and barley. The city of Sacramento, at the junction of the Sacramento and American rivers, has a population of over 30,000; contains the state capitol, an imposing structure costing over $3,000,000, the Crocker Art Gallery, and the shops of the Central Pacific Railroad Company, employing nearly 3,000 men. The trade of Sacramento amounts to $60,000,000 a year. Folsom, where the branch State Prison is located, is famed for its granite quarries. The assessed valuation of the county in 1887 was $26,959,475.

SAN BENITO.

San Benito county was formerly a part of Monterey county, by which it is bounded on the south and west; Merced and Fresno are on the east, and Santa Clara constitutes its northern boundary; its area is 1,056 square miles. The population, which in 1880 was 5,584, is now estimated at 10,000. Hollister is the county seat, and is a flourishing town of 2,500 inhabitants. San Juan, seven miles from Hollister, is an old town, and is the site of one of the Franciscan missions. Tres Pinos is a young but enterprising village on the Southern Pacific. Between the Gabilan and Mount Diablo ranges, which inclose the county, are many thousand acres of fine farming land, watered by the San Benito river and Tres Pinos creek. Wool-growing is an important industry, and the mineral products of the county have added materially to its prosperity. The famous New Idria quicksilver mines, discovered in 1852, are among the richest in the world, the estimated value of their output to date being over $8,000,000. Limestone of good quality and iron ore and antimony also exist in the Gabilan mountains. The assessed valuation of the county in 1887 was $5,409,135.

SAN BERNARDINO.

San Bernardino county lies south of Inyo, and extends from Los Angeles and Kern counties on the west to the Arizona line; it ranks first in size among the counties, and has an area of 21,172 square miles. The population by the United States census of 1880 was 7,786, but so great has been the influx of immigrants that it is now estimated to have 30,000. San Bernardino, the county seat, is an old town settled by the Mormons, which has suddenly developed within three years into an important city, with many costly buildings and a population of 10,000. Other important towns are Riverside, the seat of extensive orange groves and raisin vineyards, Colton, Cucamonga, Lugonia. The eastern part of the county includes portions of the Mojave and Colorado desert, but thousands of acres of what was once regarded as hopelessly sterile have been reclaimed by artesian wells. The southwestern section is very fertile, and with irrigation produces all kinds of fruits, grain and vegetables. Wheat-growing, once the leading industry, has given place to orange and grape culture, and the growing of deciduous fruits and vegetables. San Bernardino produces the finest oranges in the state. Immense irrigation works have been constructed; the largest reservoir is at the head of Bear creek, and is six miles long by three quarters of a mile wide. Other important industries are mining and lumbering. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $15,937,995, against $8,089,305 for 1886.

SAN DIEGO.

San Diego county is situated at the extreme southern end of the state, adjoining Lower California and extending from the Pacific ocean to Arizona. Its area is 14,968 square miles. The population, given in the United States census of 1880 as 8,618, has leaped in the last three years to 40,000. San Diego, the county seat, had no railroad connection with the outside world in 1886, but to-day it has through connection with several lines of railroad, has spent $1,500,000 in improvements, and has a population of 25,000. On Coronado beach, directly opposite San Diego, $1,000,000 has been spent on a great hotel and its grounds. Both San Diego and its suburbs have the electric light, motor railroads and all city conveniences, with a system of sewerage that insures good health. All these expenditures have been made on the strength of its advantages as a health resort, the climate being very equable and the water suitable for bathing the most of the year. Other important towns are San Jacinto, Banning and Elsinore. All fruits grow luxuriantly in the county, but the chief drawback has been lack of water. This is now being developed by artesian wells and storage reservoirs in the mountains. The leading products are citrus fruits, raisins, olives and nuts. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $18,712,053, against $9,961,282 for 1886.

SAN FRANCISCO COUNTY.

See sketch of city.

SAN JOAQUIN.

San Joaquin county is an agricultural county, bounded by Sacramento, Amador, Calaveras, Stanislaus, Alameda and Contra Costa. Its area is 1,370 square miles. In 1880 the population was 24,349. It is now 35,000. The San Joaquin, Mokelumne, and Calaveras rivers flow through the county, and as they near their outlets, form a vast delta, portions of which have been reclaimed and found to be extremely productive. Stockton, near the head of tide-water on the San Joaquin river, the county seat, is one of the leading cities of California, its manufacturing interests being very large. Lodi, Woodbridge, Lockford, Farmington and Lathrop are all lively towns. The county is noted for the fertility of its soil, which produces all kinds of crops, and being so well watered seldom suffers from drought. Wheat is the chief product; the yearly shipments of this cereal running up into the millions of bushels. Fruit is also grown and sent to market in considerable quantities. The assessed valuation of the county in 1887 was $31,873,165.

SAN LUIS OBISPO.

San Luis Obispo county lies between the Pacific ocean and the Coast range, with Monterey on the north and Santa Barbara on the south. This county embraces 3,578 square miles, and has an estimated population of 20,000, though in 1880 it was given at 9,142. San Luis Obispo is the county seat and business center of the county, the principal towns being San Simeon, Cambria, Avila, Paso Robles, Templeton, Arroyo Grande and San Miguel. Stock-raising, dairying, farming and horticulture are conducted extensively, and the honey product is an important factor in the county's wealth. Port Harford is the principal seaport, though there are five shipping points along the eighty miles of coast. The fertile interior valleys are drained by the Salinas river and its tributaries; the soil is adobe mixed with sandy loam, and irrigation is not needed. Gypsum is found in large quantities, and other minerals are known to exist. The recent extension of the Southern Pacific has given the interior of this county a new impetus, and its population is rapidly increasing. The most valuable sulphur springs in the state are located at Paso Robles, which is celebrated as a great health resort. When the Southern Pacific Coast line is completed from Santa Barbara, Paso Robles will be one of the main stopping-places on this tourist line, Santa Barbara and Monterey being the other two. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $10,977,519.

SAN MATEO.

San Mateo county adjoins San Francisco on the south. It is bounded on the west by the Pacific ocean, on the south by Santa Cruz, and on the east by San Francisco bay and Santa Clara county. Its area is 459 square miles. Redwood City is the county seat. Belmont, Menlo Park, Halfmoon Bay, San Mateo, San Bruno, Millbrae, La Honda and Pescadero are the other towns best known. The population, now estimated at 15,000, was 8,669 in 1880. Dairying, farming and lumbering are the principal industries of the county. Pescadero, situated on the ocean, 56 miles south of San Francisco, annually ships many millions of shingles and lumber cut from adjoining redwood forests; it also is the center of the butter and cheese industry. Most of the milk supplied to the metropolis comes from dairy farms in the neighborhood of San Bruno, Millbrae and San Mateo. At Palo Alto, near San Mateo, is located the famous stock farm of Senator Leland Stanford, and here are being erected the buildings of the Leland Stanford Jr. University, destined to be one of the leading educational institutions of the world. The endowment consists of $12,000,000, and the aim of the founder is to furnish mental, moral and manual training. Liberal scholarships will be provided, and needy students will be aided. In the university town board will be provided at low rates. In connection with the university will be an experimental farm and shops for learning the trades. At Belmont, and other places along the Southern Pacific railroad, are many splendid suburban residences of San Francisco millionaires. In 1887 the assessed valuation of the county was $9,995,189.

SANTA BARBARA.

Santa Barbara county fronts on the Pacific ocean, and is bounded on the north by San Luis Obispo, on the east by Ventura, and on the south by Santa Barbara channel, flowing between the mainland and the islands of Santa Cruz, San Miguel and Santa Rosa. It contains 2,265 square miles, and an estimated population of 30,000, which has increased from 9,513 in 1880. Santa Barbara, the county seat, famous for the salubrity of its climate, has rapidly grown in business importance since its connection with the railroad system of the state. It is a city of 8,000 inhabitants. Other towns are Lompoc, Guadalupe, Carpenteria, Goleta and Central City. Sheep-raising has heretofore constituted the most important industry of the county, the Channel islands furnishing their share of the product, but agriculture and fruit-growing are coming to be regarded as more reliable sources of profit. Olive-oil is being produced on a large scale, and Santa Barbara has entered into successful competition with her neighbors in the growth of citrus fruits. The assessed valuation of the county in 1887 was $16,035,982.

SANTA CLARA.

Santa Clara is a valley county at the southern extremity of San Francisco bay, with an area of 1,296 square miles, and a population of 50,000, against 35,039 in 1880. It is one of the most important grain and fruit producing sections of the state. San José, the fifth city in California, is the county seat, and is situated in the center of a magnificent valley; three miles distant is the town of Santa Clara, the two being connected by the famous Alameda. Other places are Gilroy, Los Gatos, Mountain View, Mayfield, New Almaden and Milpitas. The resources of the county embrace cereals, fruits, wool, live stock and dairy products. The orchards yield, without irrigation, thousands of tons of the choicest fruit every season, and vast fields of grain cover the valley for miles without a break. At San José is located the State Normal School, and on Mount Hamilton, 20 miles distant, is the world-famous Lick Observatory, with its great 36-inch telescope. The assessed valuation of property in 1887 was $41,724,124.

SANTA CRUZ.

Santa Cruz is comparatively a small county on the northern side of Monterey bay, with San Mateo on the north, and Santa Clara on the east. Its area is 437 square miles, and the population, placed at 12,802 in 1880, is now estimated at 25,000. Santa Cruz, a flourishing city of nearly 7,000 inhabitants, noted as a seaside resort, is the county seat. Watsonville, in the Pajaro valley, one of the most fertile sections of the state, is the second town in size. Other places are Soquel, Aptos, Felton and Capitola. The Coast range here comes down near to the sea, and its slopes and canyons, covered with a dense growth of redwood, furnish a source of wealth and employment to many lumbermen. The eleven saw-mills in the county produced 50,000,000 feet of lumber in 1887, of which 40,000,000 feet were exported. The powder works near Santa Cruz, and extensive lime works and tanneries, also add materially to the prosperity of the people. The beet-sugar works, now being built at Watsonville, will be the largest in the United States, if not in the world. Santa Cruz annually sends large quantities of fruit to market. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $8,342,490.

SHASTA.

Shasta county forms the extreme northern point of the great Sacramento valley. Here are the headwaters of the river, which has its source in the defiles of Mt. Shasta, and here is some of the most picturesque scenery in the west. The county is traversed both by the Sierras and the Coast range, and for the most part is extremely mountainous, while the forest is largely virgin. The area is 3,765 square miles, and the population has jumped from 9,492 in 1880 to fully 20,000 at present, and the increase this year will be greater than in any preceding year. Redding, the county seat, is one of the most promising cities north of Sacramento. It lies in a position to command the trade of a rich farming, mining and lumbering region, and its growth during the last two years has been phenomenal. Other towns are Shasta, Cottonwood and Anderson. Until recently, farming, stock-raising and mining were the chief industries, but experiment has shown that soil and climate in Shasta are specially adapted to fruits, and a very large acreage has been planted, and several flourishing colonies have been established. The completion of the California and Oregon railroad has given a great impetus to the development of the county, and settlers are rapidly locating on the public lands. The assessed value of the county in 1887 was $3,572,381.

SIERRA.

As its name indicates, Sierra is one of the counties that is formed by the great chain of mountains that bars off California from Nevada. It lies to the south of Lassen and Plumas, and most of its surface is broken by mountain peaks and ridges, though there are a number of rich valleys, walled in by spurs of the Sierra Nevada. The area is 781 square miles. The United States census of 1880 gave the population as 6,623; at present the county has about 9,000. Downieville, the county seat, was once the seat of very important mines, and it still commands a large trade. Other towns are Sierra City and Forest City. Mining has always been the leading industry. The county was rich in mineral deposits, and in the early days it produced large quantities of gold. Now, when only a small number of mines are worked, the yield is still something over $1,000,000 a year. Agriculture is carried on in the elevated valleys, the land being extraordinarily fertile. The assessed valuation of the county in 1887 was $1,710,532.

SISKIYOU.

At the far northern end of the state, Siskiyou includes the mountains that form the natural wall between California and Oregon. It lies between Modoc and Del Norte, and comprises some of the finest scenery in the state. At the eastern end are portions of the historic lava-beds. The canyons of the Sacramento and Pitt rivers form the natural highway to Oregon, while the whole western part is a series of broken mountain ridges. Yreka, the county seat, is a flourishing town, while other new towns along the railroad are Sisson's, Upper Soda Springs and Montague. The area of the county is 6,078 square miles, and the population, given in 1880 as 8,610, is now estimated at 11,000. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $4,197,591. Mining is still the chief industry, but general farming is rapidly taking its place, as the lands are rich and produce heavy crops of all the cereals. In the northern part, stock-raising is carried on. In the southeastern part of the county lies Mt. Shasta. The Southern Pacific Company have proposed to the United States government to set aside the region near Mt. Shasta as a national park, and thus preserve the timber and game. If this be done, the region will become a resort for tourists second only in its attractions to the Yosemite valley.

SOLANO.

One of the richest fruit and grain counties in the state is Solano, which borders on the straits of Carquinez and Suisun bay. Its area is 828 square miles, and it has a population of 25,000, a rapid growth from the 18,475 given in the United States census of 1880. Fairfield, the county seat, is the center of a large trade, and other important cities are Suisun, Rio Vista, Benicia, Cordelia and Vallejo. The latter is the largest place in the county, and is noted as the site of Mare Island navy-yard, the only government naval station on this coast. For many years Solano county was chiefly famous for the large crops of wheat that it produced, but of late years it has established an equal reputation for fruit-growing. The Vaca valley region is celebrated as among the great fruit sections of the state. The warmth and equability of the climate in this favored valley insures remarkably early and heavy crops of all kinds of fruit. From Vacaville, the chief town in the valley, no less than ten car-loads of fruit are daily shipped during the season. The county has the best health record in the state. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $17,574,477.

SONOMA.

Sonoma county has an ocean boundary of 65 miles, between Marin and Mendocino, with Napa county on the east, and San Pablo bay fringing a portion of its southern shore. Its area is 1,500 square miles, and its estimated population at 40,000. The United States census of 1880 gave a population of 25,926. Santa Rosa, the county seat, is a city of great commercial importance, while the enterprise of its people has made it one of the most beautiful in the state, with great advantages in the way of schools and churches. Other towns of importance are Sonoma, which was settled by the mission padres in 1823, Petaluma, Healdsburg, Guerneville and Cloverdale. Sonoma, like Napa, is celebrated as one of the chief wine-making counties. Here the first thorough experiments were made in introducing choice foreign varieties of wine grapes, and for many years Sonoma took the lead both in quality and quantity of wine produced. She still takes third rank in the production of wine and table grapes. There has been a great increase in the acreage of grapes during the last five years, and much land formerly regarded as worthless has been shown specially adapted to the vine. Nearly all fruits do well in Sonoma, and the yield is large. Dairying, stock-raising, wool-growing and lumbering are all important industries. For the first three, it is unsurpassed, because of the moisture that keeps the natural grasses green until far into the dry season. The redwood belt is extensive, and the great lumbering camps along the Russian river turn out an average of 1,000,000 feet per day. The county's assessed valuation in 1887 was $26,253,745.

STANISLAUS.

One of the great wheat counties is Stanislaus, in the heart of the San Joaquin valley. It extends from the foothill counties of Calaveras and Tuolumne to Santa Clara on the west, and is watered by the San Joaquin, Stanislaus and Tuolumne rivers. Most of the land is level as a barn floor, of exhaustless fertility, and is held in great ranches by owners who derive a princely income from the grain crops, that are seldom known to fail. The area of the county is 1,500 square miles, and the estimated population is 14,000; the United States census of 1880 gave the population as 8,751. Modesto, the county seat, is the center of one of the richest farming districts in the state, and though a young town, it has over 2,500 people. Other towns are Knight's Ferry, Oakdale, Hill's Ferry and Turlock. Wheat-growing is the leading pursuit, but fruit-growing will soon dispute precedence with it. A very large acreage of fruit-trees has been planted during the last five years. Even the citrus fruits flourish here, where frost is almost unknown. The deciduous fruits and grapes from Stanislaus are celebrated for their superior size and flavor. The assessed valuation of the county in 1887 was $14,714,741.

SUTTER.

Lying in the heart of the Sacramento valley, Sutter county would be almost a level plain but for the Sutter buttes, that rise to a height of 1,000 feet and form the great landmark in the valley. The county is inclosed between the Sacramento and Feather rivers, and the soil is alluvial material of exhaustless fertility. Where not cultivated, it supports a heavy growth of oak; and it has been cropped from year to year in wheat and other grains without showing any decrease of yield. The area is 610 square miles, and there is almost no waste land. The census of 1880 gave a population of 5,159, but the estimated population to-day is 7,000. The county seat, Yuba city, is situated on the Feather river, directly opposite to Marysville, in Yuba county, the great trading-post for a half-dozen counties. Other towns are Nicolaus, Meridian, Live Oak and Pleasant Grove. The chief industry in Yuba is farming, and the county is noted for the size of its wheat ranches and the wealth of their owners. With the single exception of Colusa, its ranchmen have clung more closely than any others in the state to their original possessions, and the great crops of wheat and barley they raise every year have made them rich. Within a few years fruit-growing has been introduced, and promises to be a great industry, as the soil and climate suit nearly all varieties. The assessed valuation for 1887 was $7,595,770, which makes Sutter the richest county in the state, as far as average wealth is concerned.

TEHAMA.

The northern end of the Sacramento valley is formed by Tehama county, which reaches from the Sierras to the Coast range, and from Shasta on the north to Butte and Colusa on the south. The area is 3,125 square miles; and the United States census of 1880 gave the population as 9,301, but it is estimated the present population is fully 14,500. Red Bluff, the county seat, is one of the most important cities in northern California. It lies on a high bluff of the Sacramento river, and has many fine buildings and a large and growing trade. Other towns are Corning, Vina and Tehama. The lands of Tehama are fully as rich as those of Sutter, but there is more waste land, which is utilized as sheep pasture. For years the chief industries were wheat and wool growing, but of late fruit has received special attention. Many of the great wheat ranches have been split up, and sold in small farms to settlers, who are planting prunes, peaches and other deciduous fruits. The county boasts of the largest vineyard in the state, or in the world, — the estate of Senator Stanford at Vina, comprising 50,000 acres, of which 3,500 acres are planted to wine grapes. Large fields are sown to alfalfa, and Holstein cattle and thoroughbred horses are also a feature of this ranch. In the northern section lumbering is an important industry. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $9,174,-918.

TRINITY.

Trinity county is one of the far northern counties, lying just south of Siskiyou, and between Shasta and Tehama on the east and Humboldt on the west. Its area is 2,625 square miles; and the population, given by the United States census of 1880 as 4,999, is now estimated at 6,500. Weaverville, the county seat, is on the Trinity river, and is the natural center for the trade of a large mining district. Other towns are Trinity Center, Lewiston, Junction City and Altoona. The chief industry of Trinity has been mining. The county is drained by the Trinity river, and it is nearly hemmed in on all sides by mountains that contain rich deposits of mineral. Hydraulic mining, which has been enjoined by law in counties that drain into the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers, is still carried on here, but quartz-mining is the main source of wealth. The last few years have seen an effort to utilize the fine grazing advantages of the county, and much fruit has been planted in the mountain valleys, where it grows to perfection. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $1,086,148.

TULARE.

Tulare county has an area of 6,406 square miles, and is the sixth in size in California; its topography is exceedingly diversified; from the low plains of the San Joaquin valley it gradually rises until its altitude culminates in Mount Whitney, 14,887 feet above the sea-level. Tulare lake, the largest body of fresh water in the state, is also embraced within its boundaries. Tulare lies south of Fresno and north of Kern, extending from the coast range on the borders of Monterey and Fresno to the peaks of the Inyo Sierras. It contains over a million acres of valley land, watered by an extensive system of irrigating ditches from Kings and Kaweah rivers, and is the banner wheat-producing county of the state. Although the climate and soil are perfectly adapted to the growth of raisin grapes, and in fact all of the semi-tropic fruits, they are not yet cultivated on an extensive scale. The tendency, however, each year is to plant less wheat and more vines and fruit-trees. The foothill section is devoted to agriculture and stock-raising, and in the mountains several prosperous saw-mills are located. The population in 1880 was 11,281; now it is not less than 15,000. Visalia is the county seat; Tulare, division headquarters of the Southern Pacific, is the largest town; Traver, Goshen, Hanford, Grangeville, Lemore and Farmerville are growing places. In 1887 the assessed valuation was $13,673,463.

TUOLUMNE.

Tuolumne is an irregularly shaped county on the western slope of the Sierras, bounded on the north by Alpine, east by Mono, south by Mariposa, and west by Stanislaus and Calaveras; its area is 1,953 square miles; the character of the country is mountainous, though rolling hills, table-lands, and sheltered valleys afford rich grazing lands and many acres of tillable soil. Mining, as in the early days of California, is still the leading industry of the people; quarries of marble and slate are also successfully worked; the timber belt of the Sierra Nevadas affords a livelihood to many lumbermen, and fruit-growing and diversified farming receive considerable attention. The Stanislaus and Tuolumne rivers flow through the county. In Tuolumne is located the famous Hetch-Hetchy valley, which in scenic grandeur is second only to the Yosemite; two groves of big trees and a mammoth cave are also among the natural wonders of the county. The population is estimated at 11,000; in 1880 it was 7,848. Sonora is the county seat. Columbia and Chinese Camp are other towns. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $2,526,736.

VENTURA.

Ventura county is bounded by Santa Barbara and Kern on the north, Los Angeles on the east, and the Pacific ocean and a portion of Santa Barbara on the west, having 65 miles of seacoast, and an area of 1,683 square miles. Ventura is noted for the extent of its grazing and farming lands, its petroleum-producing districts and the healthfulness of its climate. Having until recently been deprived of railroad communication to market, and many of its large ranches being undivided, its progress in the past was slow, but it has now entered upon an era of genuine prosperity. The production of cereals and fruits is increasing, and a desirable class of immigrants are finding homes in the county. The honey industry is very important, — over 3,000,000 pounds being marketed in 1887. San Buenaventura, the county seat, is situated near the ocean on the Ventura river, and 12 miles from the port of Hueneme, in the oil belt, which promises to be a source of great wealth. The Santa Clara and Ojai valleys are capable of supporting a vast population, and are being rapidly settled up. The population in 1880 was 5,073; now it is at least 10,000. The assessed valuation in 1887 was $6,372,819.

YOLO.

Yolo county is a portion of the great Sacramento valley, bounded by Colusa, Sacramento, Sonoma, Solano, and Lake, embracing 1,017 square miles of land, nearly all of which is adapted to agriculture. There are, however, about 40,000 acres of so-called swamp-lands, which, though overflowed in the winter, furnish in summer good pasturage for stock. The Sacramento river flows along the eastern boundary of the county, while Putah and Cache creeks and many smaller streams supply over 50 miles of irrigating ditches for the dryer districts. The fruit and vegetables of Yolo are unexcelled; raisins are extensively produced, and the orange crop is increasing yearly. Wheat, barley and hay, however, are the chief products. Dairying is an important industry, and of late years considerable attention has been paid to the growth of hops. The California and Oregon railway passes through the county. The population is estimated at 16,000 as against 11,772 in 1880. Woodland is the county seat, and is only 18 miles from the capital of the state. Other towns are Davisville, Knight's Landing, Yolo, Capay, Dunnigan, Madison and Washington. In 1887 the assessed valuation of the county was $16,775,949.

YUBA.

Yuba county, with an area of 917 square miles, is bounded by Butte and Plumas on the north, Sierra and Nevada on the east, Nevada, Placer and Sutter on the south, and Sutter on the west. It was formerly the center of the hydraulic mining industry, and thousands of acres of farming land were ruined by débris; but now that an injunction has been put on the miners, many of their ditches are being used for the purpose of irrigation. Thus while the output of the mines has very largely decreased, the agricultural and horticultural resources of the county are being developed to a surprising extent. Lumber is manufactured on a large scale, and fruits and grain are produced in constantly increasing quantities. The population of the county, in 1880 11,284, is now about 13,000, but recently it has begun to increase in a greater ratio. Marysville, the county seat, is a well-built city of about 7,000 inhabitants. Wheatland, Smartsville, Camptonville and Brownsville are other towns. In 1887 the assessed valuation of the county was $5,436,710.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

To describe California is to describe not a state, but an empire. In diversity of soil, climate and productions it easily equals any half-dozen of the other states of the Union, and in size it is surpassed only by Texas. It excels Florida in the growth of the orange and the lemon, and Delaware in the culture of the peach; while it has no rival in the production of the apricot, nectarine, fig, olive, grape, almond and walnut. Five states in the Union surpass it in wheat production, but it leads all in the yield of barley, wool, wine, raisins, dried and canned fruit. It ranked, according to the census of 1880, the ninth among the states in aggregate wealth and the first in per capita wealth, while it stood twelfth on the list for the value of its manufactures. It boasts also of some of the greatest natural curiosities in the world, as well as of a score of the largest enterprises. It has the tallest trees in the world in the Calaveras grove; the greatest mountain-walled valley in the Yosemite; the largest vineyard, fruit farm, dairy, orange-grove and almond and peach orchards; the largest mining ditch, the largest irrigating ditch, and the largest reservoir for the storage of water; the largest hotel, the greatest railroad corporation, and the most productive placer and quartz mines.

DESCRIPTION OF THE STATE.

California is 770 miles in length by 330 miles in breadth, and has an area of 156,511 square miles, but it is only by comparison that one can get an idea of its magnitude. The state extends along the Pacific as far as from Cape Cod to Charleston, S. C. It is larger than Michigan and Minnesota combined, and nearly four times as large as New York. A single county — San Bernardino — would contain Vermont, Massachusetts, and Connecticut, while an average-sized county like Monterey would hold Rhode Island and Delaware and have room to spare. The state extends from the parallel of 42° on the north, which is the southern boundary of Oregon, to the parallel of 32½° on the south, which forms the boundary-line between the state and the peninsula of Lower California. The 120th meridian forms its eastern boundary until the 39th parallel is reached, when the state line extends obliquely to the southeast until it intersects the 35th parallel at the Colorado river; then it follows the river down to the junction with the Gila, where the Mexican line begins. The western boundary is formed by the Pacific ocean.

ITS PECULIAR TOPOGRAPHY.

The topography of California accounts for most of its peculiarities of soil and climate. There is the great central valley region, 450 miles long, that drains into the ocean through the bay of San Francisco, and which includes one third of the area of the state. This valley is barred off from harsh east winds by the lofty Sierra Nevada range, snow-capped throughout the year, and it is protected from the fog and trade-winds of the Pacific by the Coast range of mountains, the only break in which occurs at the Golden Gate. The Sierra is nearly 600 miles long, and consists of a succession of lofty peaks, reaching their greatest height in Mt. Whitney, 14,887 feet. Its gradual slope to the west gives to California the rich and attractive foothill counties, that extend from the snow-clad mountains down to the warm and fertile valleys. The Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers drain this great interior valley, and they have many important tributaries whose sources are fed by the snows of the Sierra. The largest tributaries of the Sacramento are the Yuba, Feather, American, Cosumnes and Mokelumne, while those of the San Joaquin are the Stanislaus, Merced, Fresno and Kings rivers. The principal rivers that empty into the ocean and that have their rise in the Coast range are the Klamath, Eel and Salinas. South of the San Joaquin valley is a great interior basin that does not drain into the sea, and which is composed largely of the Mojave and Colorado deserts, with the rich alluvial lands that form what is known as the southern California counties. The region lying between the Coast range and the sea at the north is heavily wooded, and forms the great redwood belt; while to the south this strip comprises some of the most fertile lands in the state, when properly irrigated. The Coast range never rises above 4,000 feet in height. There are many large lakes in California. Tulare lake has an area of 700 square miles, and is situated in the lower part of the San Joaquin valley;

it is only 40 feet deep, and its waters are steadily receding. In the Sierra are Lake Tahoe, the most beautiful of the mountain lakes, with a depth of 1,500 feet; Mono lake, that forms the sink of streams in the high Sierra, and Owen's lake, that is the sink of the Owen's river, and is below the sea level.

EARLY HISTORY.

As a state, California has a brief but eventful history; but as a province of Spain and Mexico, its records extend over nearly three centuries. From the time of Cortes, the Spaniards had an eager curiosity to explore the unknown shore to the north of the Gulf of California. Many expeditions were sent out, but the chief of these explorers were Cabrillo and Viscaino. The former first visited California in 1542. It was not until two hundred years after, in 1769, that the Spaniards obtained any foothold in the country, and this they secured by the cross, and not by the sword. The priest succeeded where the soldier failed. The Jesuits had founded many missions in Lower California, but it remained for Father Junípero Serra, a Franciscan monk, to establish the long chain of missions which stretched along the coast for five hundred miles. Each mission was the center of a great establishment, where the Indians were taught the rudiments of religion, and made to labor in the fields of the fathers. By 1804 there were nineteen of these missions in California, and two others were afterward established. The Indian converts numbered 20,000, while the herds of cattle and flocks of sheep were the envy of their neighbors. Meanwhile the Spaniards had established military posts at the chief points along the coast and at several places in the interior. The country was ruled by governors sent out by Spain, and the land was portioned in huge grants among the wealthy colonists, who raised cattle and sheep. The Spanish authority lasted until 1822, when the government of the country passed into the hands of Mexico. During this period the missions acquired great influence and wealth; but the jealousy of the Mexican colonists began to be aroused, and in 1835 the missions were secularized. The law provided for the apportionment of the lands and herds between the Indians and the white settlers, but the latter secured about everything. Mexican rule was characterized by frequent revolutions, and the country was ripe for a change when the Americans appeared.

The first of the adventurous American hunters and trappers came in 1826. They were followed in 1839 by Captain John Sutter, who secured a large grant of land in what is now the heart of the Sacramento valley; he established a great ranch, and as justice of the peace actually ruled the country for several years. The arrival of Fremont, the pathfinder, in 1846, increased the hostility which the aggressive American settlers had excited. The natives tried to capture Fremont, but failed. After some skirmishes, attended with little bloodshed, the American flag was hoisted at Monterey on July 7, 1846, and California practically became a part of the Union, although it was not until May, 1848, that the treaty of Guadaloupe Hidalgo ceded California to the United States as one of the fruits of the Mexican war.

THE GOLD DISCOVERY.

Many immigrants began to come into the country across the plains, but it was not until gold was discovered in the race of Sutter's mill at Coloma, on January 19, 1848, that the phenomenal settlement of California began. As soon as authentic news of the finding of gold reached the East, there began a rush to California such as has never been equaled in the history of this country. No accurate record was kept, but good estimates place the number of immigrants who reached California in 1849 at 80,000, and more than 120,000 followed in the next three years. The gold rush brought many desperate men to California, but it also brought the young and adventurous, eager to make their fortunes. These pioneers were picked men, for only the most robust could hope to endure the hardships of the long journey, and the privations of life in the mining camps. They furnished the qualities that have made Californians celebrated for enterprise, pluck, and tireless energy. For a decade this rush of settlers continued. San Francisco sprang at one bound from a village to a great city; many mining towns were the seat of trade that was worth several millions a year; when the placer mines were exhausted, the hydraulic method was introduced, and this was followed by the still more costly method of quartz mining.

As early as 1849 the need of a stable government had become so urgent that a convention was held, a state government adopted, and two U. S. senators elected, before the state was actually admitted to the Union, on September 9, 1850. In the annals of Anglo-Saxon self-government, nothing has ever surpassed the skill with which the California pioneers regulated their affairs. Twice was San Francisco called upon to form a vigilance committee to rid the young city of the criminals that threatened to gain complete control of the government and the courts. The work was done thoroughly, and law and order were assured. In the mining camps Judge Lynch was frequently called on to sit in judgment on offenders, but fair play always prevailed, though swift and certain punishment was meted out to the criminals. When the Rebellion broke out California was so remote that many fears were expressed for her loyalty; but though no draft was ever levied, and though many left for the southern army, the state remained faithful to the Union. It was in the darkest days of the war that Governor Leland Stanford and his associates carried on the building of the Central Pacific railroad, which has done more than anything else for the rapid development of the state. The completion of this first of the transcontinental roads marks the beginning of the great western empire. It brought the country into close relations with the East, and it induced a great emigration from the older-settled states.

POPULATION.

The present population of the state can only be gained by estimate. The U. S. census of 1880 gave 850,000, and the yearly percentage of increase in the preceding decade as 5.4. A careful estimate by the state authorities in 1885 put the population at 1,165,000. The last two years have seen an immigration unparalleled since the early days of the gold excitement, and from the figures given by the railroad companies it is estimated that 150,000 were added in those two years, making the total at the close of 1887 1,315,000. This is only 115,000 in excess of the regular ratio laid down by the U. S. census, and it is believed to be under rather than over the true figures, as the Southern Pacific Company brought more passengers into the state last year than for any two years since it was opened. The net gain of population during 1887 is regarded as fully 100,000.

CLIMATE.

California has many climates, due to the influence of mountains and distance from the sea. In the high Sierras, and the extreme northern parts of the state, one may secure a winter climate like that of Minnesota, with dry, bracing air and heavy snow, while along the edge of the Colorado desert one may select a home where rain seldom falls, the mercury rarely drops below 70°, and the sun shines 350 days in the year. Between these two extremes California affords every variety of climate, but the marked features are absence of extreme changes of temperature, lack of rain during six months, and the stimulating character of the air. California, in fact, resembles Italy and Spain in climate more closely than any other countries, but it has a variety of thermal belts of which neither of the old-world countries can boast. Of course the Kuro Siwo, or Japanese gulf-stream, is the great agent in giving California a mild winter and a cool summer climate. Its width here is fully 500 miles, and its depth at least one mile. By its influence the region between the Sierra Nevadas and the sea, which by latitude ought to be as cold in winter as the Mississippi valley, is saved from all extremes of cold, and the temperature rarely descends below the freezing-point.

For convenience, the state may be divided into several thermal belts. The first includes the Sierras, where the mean temperature in summer is 65°, and in winter 25°. Then comes the foothill region of the Sierras, with a climate fully ten degrees milder than the Sierra; then the coast belt from the Oregon line to San Francisco, and extending back twenty miles, a section where the mean temperature is 55°, the heat never oppressive, and where one may do the largest amount of work with the least effort; next to this is the belt that rings the great interior valleys, and which has a mean of 60°; then we have what is styled the "thermal belt," forming the great Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys and the southern counties of San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Los Angeles, San Bernardino and San Diego. The mean temperature here is from 60° to 65°, and hard frost is almost unknown. The final belt is that which includes the Mojave and Colorado deserts, — rainless, intensely hot in summer, and yet subject to bleak winds in winter.

The seasons are marked off distinctly into the rainy and the dry seasons. The rainy season begins usually in November and extends to April. The rain-fall varies from an average of about 8 inches in the lower San Joaquin valley to 29 inches in the upper Sacramento valley, giving the average for the state at about 16 inches. With the first winter rains the farmer begins work, and the success of grain and all other crops that are not irrigated depends upon the proper regulation of the amount of rain that falls. After April it is unusual to have any rain for six months.

HEALTH AND PLEASURE RESORTS.

California has many health and pleasure resorts, but the foremost place must be given to the world-famous Yosemite valley, which lies in the heart of the high Sierras in Mariposa county. It is 165 miles from San Francisco, and is easily reached by train and stage-coach. In no other mountain valley in this country, and perhaps in none in the world, are to be found walls of such great height, rising nearly perpendicular from the base, or waterfalls of such great beauty. The walls inclosing the valley vary in height from 1,200 to 4,700 feet, yet in the face of most of them trails have been dug which allow the tourist to gain points of vantage from their summits. The chief features of the valley are El Capitan, a huge, smooth mass of rock 3,300 feet above the valley; Glacier Point 3,705 feet high, Sentinel Dome 4,150 feet, Half Dome 4,737, and Cloud's Rest 6,150 feet. The valley, it must be remembered, is 4,000 feet above sea-level. The largest of the waterfalls is the Yosemite, which leaps down 2,550 feet in three distinct falls; the upper and most beautiful cataract has a sheer fall of 1,500 feet. The other important falls are the Nevada, Vernal and Bridal Veil falls. The state has reserved the valley as a park, and has recently completed a fine hotel.

Objects of interest that vie with Yosemite are the two groves of big trees, — one in Calaveras, and the other in Mariposa county. The Calaveras grove numbers more than 100 large-sized trees. The tallest is 325 feet high, while a score are over 250 feet; the largest has a circumference of 95 feet. This grove is on one of the main lines into the Yosemite, and has a good hotel. The Mariposa grove is generally visited by those who enter Yosemite by the new Raymond route. It has 427 trees, of which the highest is 272 feet, and the circumference of the largest is 91½ feet.

Prominent among the natural curiosities of the state are the Geysers of Sonoma county. They consist of hundreds of springs, many of boiling water, situated in a ravine, the soil of which is hot for a quarter of a mile square. Some of the springs emit jets of water and steam. The most remarkable is the Steamboat Geyser, which blows off steam with a great noise. Another is the Witches' Cauldron, seven feet in diameter, and which has never been sounded by plummet. These springs deposit the various minerals with which they are impregnated, — sulphur, iron, alum, magnesia, soda, etc. The springs and hotel are in a narrow canyon which is reached by one of the most picturesque drives in California.

Other well-known mineral springs are Calistoga, at the upper end of the Napa valley, which has many hot springs scattered over several hundred acres; Mark West, Litton, and Taylor's springs, in Sonoma county; Napa Soda springs, Skaggs', Summit Soda, Adams', Ætna, and White Sulphur springs, in Napa county; Bartlett, Highland, and Harbin's springs in Lake county; Pacific Congress springs in Santa Clara county; Paso Robles in San Luis Obispo; and San Bernardino hot springs.

Among pleasure resorts a leading place must be given to the seaside resorts. Monterey, 120 miles from San Francisco, and reached by the swiftest train west of Chicago, is noted for its magnificent Hotel del Monte and grounds, and for its fine bathing pavilion, in which are four large tanks, each 50 × 36 feet, filled with sea water heated to various temperatures. Three miles distant is Pacific Grove Retreat, once a camp-meeting ground, but now a village of pretty cottages among the pines. The seventeen-mile drive from the Hotel del Monte around the peninsula of Monterey is one of the most picturesque in the state. Across the bay from Monterey is Santa Cruz, a popular resort, which has a fine bathing beach, and is surrounded by a country rich in natural curiosities. The greatest of these is the big trees, seven miles distant. Here is a grove of redwoods of 20 acres, with one tree 18 feet in diameter and more than a score ten feet or more in diameter. All about Santa Cruz are fine drives, with resorts for camping and hunting in the wild Santa Cruz mountains.

In the south the leading seaside resorts are Santa Barbara, which has an unusually equable climate, a good beach, and the famous Arlington hotel; San Diego, with an unsurpassed beach, fine scenery, and the Hotel del Coronado, on the beach opposite the city, the largest seaside hotel in the world; Santa Monica, the resort of Los Angeles, famous for its beach and its hotel, and Long Beach, also a noted watering-place.

It is impossible in these limits to even name the prominent inland pleasure resorts in the southern counties. Most of the new towns and colonies in these counties have made a specialty of accommodating tourists, and Riverside, Pasadena, and many of the colonies about Los Angeles have built immense hotels for invalids and tourists.

Among mountain resorts the most popular are Lake Tahoe, which may be reached by rail, and which gives fine Sierra scenery, boating, and trout-fishing, and Mt. Shasta, which rises 14,440 feet above the surrounding plain, and is easily climbed.

WHEAT AND BARLEY.

In wheat California stands fifth in the list of states. For twenty years the fertile lands of the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys have been regularly cropped in wheat, and still the yield remains almost as large as when the land was new. The climate helps the grain-grower, as after the wheat begins to head there is never any danger of rain; all the harvesting operations are carried on in the open field, and the grain is left sacked up until it is hauled to the warehouse for shipment. The chief wheat-growing counties are Sutter, Stanislaus, Colusa, Yolo, Sacramento, San Joaquin, Merced, and Tulare. The wheat product of 1887 was 12,887,092 centals, and the exports were 12,218,344, valued at $17,955,131, as against 11,340,329 centals for 1886, 15,732,435 for 1885, and 11,282,548 for 1884. The annual average wheat shipments for eight years have amounted to 15,000,000 centals, valued at $22,000,000. The banner year was 1881–82, when exports were 22,279,545 centals, valued at $36,376,100.

In connection with wheat, California does an enormous business in flour, the exports for 1887 being 992,546 barrels, valued at $3,992,506. This is the smallest output for five years, because of the corner in wheat. The exports in 1885 were 1,304,641 barrels, valued at $5,322,438.

In barley, California leads all the states, the average annual crop for the last eight years being 20,000,000 bushels. The acreage in 1887 was about 800,000 acres, of which about ten per cent must be deducted for hay.

The hop crop for 1887 was 36,424 bales, as against 28,411 bales for 1886 and 41,231 bales for 1884.

FRUIT-GROWING.

No industry in California has grown so rapidly or promises to be of such great value as fruit-growing. Most of the fruit-trees have been planted within the last fifteen years. It has been found that the old foothill mining counties are admirably adapted to nearly all kinds of fruit, and lands which have been used only for grazing have been planted to all kinds of fruit with the best results. It is estimated that there are now over 10,000,000 fruit-trees in the state, and the planting this year could not have been less than 500,000. To give an idea of what has been done, Placer county five years ago did not have a hundred orange-trees; to-day it ranks third among the citrus counties, while it boasts of the earliest deciduous fruit in the market. Butte county is another instance of the great development of fruit culture. At least one third of the state is suited to the growth of the orange and lemon, while all the deciduous fruits may be grown everywhere except in the Sierras and immediately along the ocean. Fruit-trees grow with great rapidity, the majority of the deciduous varieties bearing full crops in the third year. Besides all the varieties that are raised at the East, California has a virtual monopoly of the apricot, olive, prune, nectarine, and raisin grape. The enormous yield of the orchards outran the capacity of drying and canning establishments, and has led within the last three years to the shipping of green fruit to the East by the car-load in fast trains. What this business has developed into may be seen from the fact that, in 1887, there were shipped East by rail 1,722 car-loads, or 35,342,850 pounds, of green deciduous fruit. Of this amount Chicago took nearly one half. Besides this, 50,737,500 pounds of fruit were canned and 10,105,000 pounds dried, while the raisin pack was 20,000,000 pounds. To this must be added the shipment of 14,784,000 pounds of citrus fruits from the southern counties.

The increase in the canned-goods trade is remarkable. The pack for 1887 was 772,500 cases (of two dozen cans) with 55,000 cases of pie-fruits and jams, and 300,000 cases of tomatoes. This made a total of 1,127,500 cases, or an increase of 200,000 cases over 1886. The growth of the dried-fruit trade is equally great. The output for 1886 was 5,590,000 pounds, while in 1887 it reached 10,105,000. The greatest increase was in apricots, which jumped from 600,000 to 3,000,000 pounds. But the greatest advance has been made in the raisin pack. In 1881 only 90,000 boxes were put up, and in successive years the output was as follows: 1882, 115,000; 1883, 125,000; 1884, 175,000; 1885, 475,000; 1886, 703,000; 1887, 800,000. At $2 a box last year's crop represents $1,600,000. The acreage in raisin grapes increases each year, and this year the crop is estimated at 1,500,000 boxes. The shipment of vegetables to the East also reached large proportions in 1887, there being 100,000,000 pounds exported by rail, of which 60,000,000 pounds were beans; 10,000,000 potatoes, and 2,000,000 onions. Of nuts California exported 1,500,000 pounds in 1887. The walnut crop amounted to 1,500,000 pounds; almonds, 500,000 pounds; peanuts, 250,000 pounds. The acreage in walnuts is large, and the crop promises soon to be of great value.

WINE AND BRANDY.

The wine crop of California will soon be of greater value than her wheat crop. The state has now over 250,000 acres of vineyard, three quarters of which is in full bearing. The estimated yield for 1887 was 16,000,000 gallons and 500,000 gallons of brandy. Napa county led with 2,700,000 gallons. Every year sees an improvement in the character of the wine. It has been demonstrated that Napa, Sonoma, and several of the counties bordering on San Francisco bay can produce clarets and white wines equal to the best French and Rhine wines. Wine exports by sea and rail for 1887 were 6,660,038 gallons. The chief difficulty of the wine-grower has been to keep his wine until it acquired the proper age. A scheme to secure this is the establishment of a great wine-cellar in Napa valley, where advances will be made on wine received for storage. Much of the foothill land that has been regarded as worthless is found to be especially adapted to choice wine grapes, and the wine industry soon promises to lead all others in California in value and importance.

WOOL.

Though there has been a falling off of about thirty per cent in the wool product of the state during the last few years, California still ranks among the leading wool-producing states. The reduction is due mainly to the rapid settlement of the state, and the consequent loss of the great ranges formerly utilized by the sheep-grower. To counterbalance this, however, the wool has been much cleaner, and the importation of thoroughbred stock has greatly improved the quality. The total production of California for 1887 was 31,564,231 pounds; total shipments, 27,461,950 pounds, valued at $5,000,000. The wool product of the state since 1854 was as follows: —

Year.	Pounds.	Year.	Pounds.	Year.	Pounds.	Year.	Pounds.
1854	175,000	1863	6,268,480	1872	24,255,468	1881	45,076,639
1855	300,000	1864	7,923,670	1873	32,155,169	1882	40,527,119

STOCK-GROWING.

The report of the State Board of Equalization for 1886 gives the only complete record of stock-growing in the state. In cattle and sheep there has been a falling off since the census of 1880, but the decline is more than compensated by the great improvement in the quality of the breeds. The cutting up of great ranches into small farms, and the fencing in of ranges, once common property of the stock-grower, have driven stockmen to the mountain counties and to the neighboring states and territories. The number, kind and value of the chief live-stock of the state for 1886 are as follows: Horses, thoroughbred 1,130, value $364,904; graded 82,568, value $3,172,241; American 107,268, value $7,333,472; Spanish 67,036, value $2,487,183; colts 67,416, value $1,798,169. Cattle, beef 11,145, value $257,355; stock 446,601, value $6,865,007; calves 159,483, value $1,163,216. Cows, thoroughbred 1,706, value $119,170; American 166,970, value $4,244,532; graded 53,487, value $1,282,330; Spanish 10,839, value $255,585; oxen 2,611, value $104,602. Hogs, 392,879, value 900,788. Mules, 33,328, value $2,390,018. Sheep, imported 12,083, value $47,695; graded 761,236, value $1,140,726; common 2,352,416, value $3,319,307.

Dairy products in 1887 were 9,547,100 lbs. butter and 3,989,400 lbs. cheese.

MINING INTERESTS.

Although mining no longer holds the first place among California industries, it is still a source of wealth in many of the mountain counties. For a number of years the industry has languished, but last year saw the development of many new quartz mines and the introduction of improved processes for working low-grade ores. Large and expensive quartz-mills will be found in Amador, Nevada, Plumas, Sierra, Shasta, Trinity, Butte, Calaveras, Tuolumne, El Dorado, Placer, Fresno and several other counties. Three fourths of the bullion product of the state comes from these quartz mines, hydraulic mining having been suppressed by law, owing to the damage that it caused by the deposit of débris on the agricultural lands of the great valleys. The yield of gold and silver for 1887 was $20,000,000, as against $19,000,000 for 1886. California is thus outranked only by Colorado as a producer of the precious metals.

Of other minerals the state produces antimony, borax, coal, gypsum, chromium, iron, magnesia, salt, soda, quicksilver and marble. The most valuable of these is quicksilver, which is mined mainly at the New Almaden mine. The product in 1887 was 32,000 flasks, of which the New Almaden furnished 20,000 and the other mines 12,000 flasks. This was a poor year, as the average annual output for 8 years was 45,000 flasks. The product for 1881 was 60,851 flasks.

LUMBER TRADE.

One of the important Pacific Coast industries is the lumber trade. San Francisco is the great market, and its chief supplies are drawn from Mendocino, Humboldt, Del Norte and Santa Cruz counties, although much fine lumber comes from the Puget Sound and British Columbia mills. Pine and redwood are the leading varieties used for lumber. The redwood belt of California, extending along the coast in Santa Cruz, Sonoma, Mendocino, Humboldt and Del Norte counties, is extensive, and the yearly output of the mills is very large. The value of the redwood is being appreciated more every year for the interior finish of houses, as it is easily worked, and when polished with oil or shellac it takes on the tint of fine mahogany. The roots and stumps of the redwood are extensively used in cabinet work. The California sugar pine is equal to the best southern pine. The output of the six mills on Puget Sound and the three British Columbia mills was 365,000,000 feet in 1887, or an average of 1,000,000 feet a day. The receipts of pine and redwood lumber and of shingles and ties at San Francisco for 1887 were as follows: Pine, 209,908,981 ft.; redwood, 118,693,590 ft.; shingles, 59,689,702 M.; railroad ties, 1,093,536.

The production of all the Pacific Coast mills was greatly stimulated in the last three years by the enormous demand for lumber from the southern counties, and chiefly from Los Angeles and San Diego.

MANUFACTURES.

Most of the manufactures in California are centered in San Francisco and its immediate vicinity, although the last few years have seen a great development of manufacturing in the southern cities. The state is noted for its manufacture of heavy mining machinery, in which it leads the world. The following are the leading manufactories in San Francisco, their number, the number of employés, and the value of their product for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1887:—

Factories.	No.	Employés.	Product for 1887.	Factories.	No.	Employés.	Product for 1887.
Artificial Stone	8	325	$500,000	Furniture	18	800	$1,300,000

Fruit Preserving	8	190	2,250,000	Woolen Mills	2	900	1,300,000

In wool manufactures the business of 1887 represented about $1,300,000, and over $500,000 was paid in wages. The principal stuffs manufactured are blankets, cassimeres, shawls, cloth, beavers, ladies' dress-goods, and flannels. These articles are conceded to be equal to the best imported, while the blankets have gained a world-wide reputation The imports of woolen goods have fallen off. Nearly all the wool used in California mills is of home production.

In sugar, California ranks high as a refining center. The raw sugar, mainly from the Sandwich Islands and Manila, used last year in the two refineries was 90,000,000 pounds, and the product was 55,000,000 pounds white sugar, 28,000,000 pounds yellow sugar and 500,000 gallons syrup. The work of building a large beet-sugar factory has been begun at Watsonville, Santa Cruz county, and this industry promises soon to be of large proportions, as in many parts of the state the sugar-beet yields large crops. In cigars, boots and shoes, clothing, furniture, fruit canning and preserving there has been a great advance in the last five years. The cigars manufactured last year amounted to 147,102,680, while 4,700,640 cigarettes were turned out.

COMMERCE.

The commerce of California centers mainly in San Francisco, although San Diego and Los Angeles have become important shipping points. The state exports yearly over $120,000,000 of her products, and her foreign imports in 1887 amounted to $41,606,700. The total receipts of the custom house at San Francisco for 1887 were $7,627,204, although two thirds of all merchandise imported comes in free of duty. No duty is collected on Hawaiian sugar and rice, tea and silk from China and Japan, and coffee from Central America. The leading foreign imports in 1887 were: Merchandise, $41,781,022; treasure, $8,587,039. The leading exports for 1887 were as follows: Merchandise, $35,856,061; of this wheat formed 12,218,344 centals, value $17,955,131; flour, 932,546 bbls., $3,992,506; barley, 706,199 bushels, $912,759; wine, 1,896,215 galls., valued at $893,712. The shipments by rail were equally heavy. The Southern Pacific Company carried in 1887 413,347,400 lbs., of which canned goods formed 50,000,000 lbs.; vegetables, 40,000,000 lbs.; green deciduous fruits, 35,342,000 lbs.; oranges, 14,784,000 lbs.; raisins, 16,000,000 lbs.; dried fruits, 16,000,000 lbs.

Salmon-canning is an important industry, which centers in San Francisco, as nearly the entire pack of California, Oregon, British Columbia and Alaska is handled here. The exports for 1887 were 186,467 cases, valued at $1,065,254.

The revenue collections in San Francisco for 1887 were $1,948,936.

The California banks and their capital were as follows during the last five years: —

Years.	No. Banks.	Paid-up Capital.	Av. Cap. per Bank.	Am't Turned Over.
1882	74	$18,033,204	$243,692	$121,886,386
1883	80	19,352,593	241,907	131,612,914
1884	87	20,400,286	234,486	147,569,890
1885	89	21,173,932	237,909	120,801,322
1886	91	21,606,859	237,438	124,665,943
1887	107	23,771,737	222,164	145,175,902

To this must be added the large number of private banks or close corporations, which swell the resources of the banking institutions of the state to $187,888,493. The operations of the San Francisco clearing house during 1887 were: Clearances, $829,181,829.86; balances, $120,474,942.72. In San Diego there has been an enormous increase of imports and exports. In 1887, 30,000 tons of freight were received by rail, and 53,944 by steamer. The exports by sea and rail were 55,000 tons. The number of railroad passengers that arrived was 60,152, as against 25,000 for the previous year. The arrivals by steamer were 25,000, about double those in 1886. The total arrival of deep-sea vessels for 1887 was 930, against 239 for 1886; while of coasting vessels there were 500. The heaviest trade was in lumber, of which no less than 150,000,000 feet were received in 1887, in 383 vessels, as against 38,600,000 feet in 1886. Foreign imports reached 78,000 tons in 1887, which includes 54,000 tons of coal. The tonnage bound for San Diego increased during the year from almost nothing to 40,000 tons. The custom-house receipts from June 30, 1886, to June 30, 1887, were 30,000, as against 5,000 in 1884–85. In 1887 San Diego erected buildings worth $4,000,000, and real estate transfers were $26,000,000. The banking business trebled in 1887, the increase in deposits of two national banks being $12,328,000, and in resources $3,000,000.

In Los Angeles the freight traffic has grown immensely; the east-bound through-freight from here over the Southern Pacific was 39,163,010 pounds for the year ending October, 1887, while the local freight for the same period was 134,859,940 pounds. Statistics from other roads have not been furnished; but in round numbers Los Angeles sends out 300 cars, of from 15 to 18 tons each, every twenty-four hours. A great wholesale trade has been built up, Los Angeles being the distributing center for all the colonies and towns around it.

RAILROAD DEVELOPMENT.

There were only a few local lines of railroad in California when, in 1862, Leland Stanford, Charles Crocker, Mark Hopkins and C. P. Huntington formed the Central Pacific Railroad Co., with the bold plan of constructing a transcontinental railroad to cross the Sierra Nevadas and meet the Union Pacific. Railroad experts as well as financiers and the general public scouted the idea of building a road over the Sierras, and no one would advance any money to aid the project. The founders invested their private fortunes in the enterprise, and by the aid of the government succeeded in carrying on and completing the work. What trials they endured, what difficulties they overcame, may be found in Creed Haymond's eloquent argument before the Senate committee on the Pacific railroads, delivered last month. The road was built during the Civil War, and the last spike was driven, with imposing ceremonies, on May 9, 1869. The main line of the Central Pacific extended from San Francisco to Ogden, 871 miles. Its branch lines were few and trifling. The success of the enterprise was immediate, and far surpassed even the most sanguine expectations of its founders. The shortest time in which the journey between San Francisco and New York could be made, prior to the completion of the railroad, was three weeks. This was by way of the Pacific Mail steamers and the Panama railroad. The opening of the through overland railroad line cut this time down to one week, and it has since been reduced to five days. The Central Pacific Company from the outset has devoted itself to the development of California. Its royal land grant was divided up and sold to settlers, the greater part of the land along the line of the road being sold for $2.50 an acre, — land which in many cases is now worth $200 per acre. By 1872 it carried 55,685 through overland passengers, of whom 34,040 were brought westward. The rapid expansion of business induced the building of a branch line of railroad to Monterey, 120 miles from San Francisco, and an important road down through the heart of the San Joaquin valley, which afforded a market for the enormous crops of wheat grown in this granary of the state. By 1880 the pressure of business on the central line was so great that it was decided to build a southern line, that would afford relief to the main passenger road. Thus the Southern Pacific was constructed. It was built with unparalleled rapidity, and has proved to be the great traffic highway over which the lion's share of all overland freights are carried. The latest important extension of the system is the completion of the California and Oregon railroad, which furnishes through connection between San Francisco and Portland, Or. This road presented many engineering difficulties, and portions of it were more costly even than the work over the Sierras. The opening of this road gave the Southern Pacific one continuous line of rail from Portland, Or., to New Orleans, a distance of 5,000 miles, — the longest line under one management in this country. In this state the company has 2,242 miles of road, and it pays taxes on an assessed valuation of $48,051,100, which does not include $619,930 of rolling stock. It is constantly building new lines, the new mileage of 1887 amounting to 251 miles. All its main branch and leased lines have been incorporated under the general title of The Southern Pacific Company, and it operated in 1887 5576.04 miles of road, of which 3888.88 belonged to the Pacific system, and 1687.16 to the Atlantic system. Its gross earnings last year were $37,930,161.51; operating expenses, $22,712,198.32; increase of gross earnings over 1886, $6,132,779.55; gross surplus for 1887, $13,511,594.35, of which no less than $9,364,503.82 was paid in interest on the bonded debt; net surplus over all was $1,034,959.56.

Other important railroad lines in California are the Atchison, which has a through line from the Southern Pacific to San Diego and a number of branch lines running from Los Angeles, and the Atlantic and Pacific, which has an independent line from the Needles, on the Colorado, to Mojave. Both these lines, however, are forced to run over the Southern Pacific Company's road to enter San Francisco.

IMMIGRATION.

The careful accounts kept by the Southern Pacific Company for fifteen years make it easy to compute the gain by immigration during these years. Perhaps the best way to show the net gain of the state in this period is by the following table of overland travel:—

Year.	Eastward.	Westward.	Year.	Eastward.	Westward.
1872	21,645	34,040	1882	37,113	58,113
1873	23,486	44,370	1883	40,107	73,700
1874	24,782	55,509	1884	37,559	58,428
1875	30,422	74,919	1885	37,293	59,772
1876	37,853	60,565	1886	66,312	92,246
1877	31,247	47,435	1887	60,499	98,290
1878	25,928	37,556	Totals	560,874	910,118
1879	25,268	36,288	Total eastward		560,784
1880	30,367	34,280
1881	30,891	47,107	Excess of travel to California.		349,334

An analysis of these figures shows that in the earlier part of this period the year 1875 was the great boom year, when the immigration reached 74,919. This was the period of great material development and rampant speculation. When the collapse came there was reaction for six years, when once more the tide turned. The increase since then has been very great, jumping in the last two years to tremendous figures, that taxed the carrying capacity of all the railroads. To the 98,290 brought by the Southern Pacific last year must be added 56,016 brought over the Atchison line, the great majority of whom came into Southern California. In fact, the rush into Los Angeles, San Diego and other southern counties during 1886 and 1887 was phenomenal. It led to the rapid settlement of scores of new towns. A few thousand also came by the Northern Pacific and the Pacific Mail, so that the total immigration for 1887 was not less than 160,000, of whom fully 100,000 remained in the state.

EDUCATIONAL ADVANTAGES.

When the first constitution of the state was draughted, the pioneers laid the foundation of one of the best public-school systems in the country. For school purposes the 16th and 36th sections of each township were set aside, and in this way a large permanent school fund has been established. Every county is divided into school districts, and wherever there are fifteen children of school age a district may be formed. Graded schools have been established in every town, and grammar and high schools in the cities. With a high standard of requirement for teachers and good salaries, the result has been the formation of a fine system.

Besides the regular public schools the state supports the University of California at Berkeley, well equipped in all departments, and with unusually fine horticultural, agricultural and mining schools, three normal schools, the Lick observatory at Mt. Hamilton, on which over $750,000 has been spent in apparatus and equipment, and which is under the control of the State University regents.

The Leland Stanford Jr. University, now building at Palo Alto, in the Santa Clara valley, has an endowment of $15,000,000, and is to be specially devoted to practical training in all branches ef education. Senator Stanford, who founded this institution as a memorial of his only son, has shaped the lines even broader than Ezra Cornell did those of the Cornell University. Technical training will be given in many handicrafts, and special provision will be made for aiding poor but deserving scholars. Adjoining the university is the fine ranch, which will be devoted to experiments in agriculture and fruit-growing. The institution is expected to open this fall. Besides these there are at least a score of incorporated colleges and seminaries for both sexes. The census of 1880 gave 3,036 public school buildings in California, with an average daily attendance of 103,179 pupils, taught by 3,536 teachers, whose salaries amounted to $2,271,219. Now it is estimated that there are 3,500 school buildings, with average attendance of 140,000 school children, 4,200 teachers, drawing $2,750,000 in salaries. The census children in 1887 numbered 272,444, for whom the state appropriated a school fund of $356,901. San Francisco alone since 1852 has spent $17,512,672 on her schools, and the value of school property there is now $3,184,575. The school appropriation in San Francisco for the fiscal year is $920,000. California pays the highest salaries to school teachers and makes the most liberal school appropriation of any state in the Union. In 1884 an amendment to the state constitution was passed providing for the preparation of a series of state text-books. Several of the series have been completed, but the success of the experiment is still in doubt.

LAND BOOMS AND DEVELOPMENT.

During the last four years there has been a great increase in land speculation, especially in the southern counties. Development has gone hand in hand with speculation, however, and the result has been a growth which beggars most of the booms in Kansas and Minnesota. The completion of the Southern Pacific railroad to New Orleans first brought Los Angeles into direct contact with the East. The colony system had proved a success about Los Angeles, and when immigrants began to pour in over the new road new colonies were started. In this way more than a score of charming suburban towns were built up around Los Angeles. Most of the immigrants were wealthy people who wanted homes free from the rigors of an Eastern winter. They spent money freely in improvements, and induced their friends to come out and settle. Land rose enormously in value. In 1885 good orange land anywhere about Los Angeles could be bought for $100 an acre. Within a year it had risen to $500 an acre, and last year it commanded readily from $1,000 to $1,500 an acre. Los Angeles suddenly leaped from a town to a large city. The best business property sells for $1,500 a front foot. The transfers of real estate have increased from $6,393,139 in 1882 to $98,243,428 in 1887. In San Diego, Riverside and San Bernardino the increase has been fully as great as in Los Angeles. There has been some shrinkages in places during the last few months, but prices, as a rule, have been well maintained.

In the northern and central parts of the state there has been no such boom as in the south, but the growth has been rapid and steady. Nearly all the good government and railroad land that is accessible has been secured, and the rush of settlers into some counties has been very great. The features that are most promising are the dividing up of the great ranches and their sale in small tracts of from twenty to one hundred acres to actual settlers, and the conversion of wheat-fields into orchards and vineyards.

FUTURE OF CALIFORNIA.

Everything points to a growth and development of the state in the next decade which will surpass that of the last ten years. Even old settlers have just begun to discover the sources of wealth that were ignored by them for so many years. Thus ten years ago the raisin industry cut no figure in the state's products, the output being only 32,000 boxes. Last year this had risen to 800,000 boxes, and it is estimated that it will increase by from 150,000 to 200,000 boxes each year. At this rate California, before the twentieth century, will be able to supply the raisin demand of the country. In wine the increase has not been so marked; but the growth is rapid, and California wine is slowly making its way into general consumption at the East. With fast trains and refrigerator cars California is also able to supply the East with fresh fruits and vegetables a full month earlier than they can be brought from other places. This, with her canned goods, furnishes a source of revenue that in a few years will outstrip every other product in value.

In making any estimate of the future growth of California, the size of the state and the endless variety of its resources must be taken into consideration. It has the virtual monopoly of a dozen products which can be grown in no other state of the Union with equal success and profit; it has a large region that possesses a climate peculiarly adapted to those afflicted with lung complaints, and it is upon the permanent demand for such sanitaria that the prosperity of Southern California is founded. In agriculture, lumbering, stock-growing, manufactures, and all the other industries that add their millions to the growing wealth of the state, the coming years will be sure to witness a great increase. All that the state needs is industrious settlers, with capital sufficient to lift them above the grade of day-laborers, and with the ambition to found homes for themselves and their children. To such settlers no state in the Union offers to-day so many advantages as California in cheap and fertile lands, varied products, good markets, the best educational and social facilities, and a climate so equable that the farmer and the artisan may work the whole year round in the open air.

ARCATA. First settled in 1846, incorporated Feb. 2, 1858, is pleasantly located on the northern extremity of Humboldt bay, in Union township, Humboldt county, and is a station on the Arcata and Mad River R. R., a line running from the bay to the north fork of Mad river, 13 miles. It is 8 miles by water, or 12 by land north of Eureka, the county seat, and 224 by water north of San Francisco. Arcata is prosperous and rapidly increasing in population, being the second in importance in the county. The population at present is 1,100, the schools of which there are 5, having a teacher for each, and an attendance of 430. It contains 4 churches, —Presbyterian, Methodist, Catholic and Adventist, —a library of 600 volumes, a fire department, with 30 active members, a bank capital $100,000, a good newspaper, the Arcata Union, published every Saturday, lodges of Masons, Odd Fellows, K. of P., A. O. U. W., S. of T., G. A. R., Chosen Friends, etc. The city has no bonded indebtedness, and the assessed value of real and personal property is $325,000. The buildings of note besides the many fine residences are the postoffice, R. R. depot, Marsh House, Excelsior hall, and the Arcata and Union hotels. An immense quantity of lumber is shipped from the wharf here which belongs to the railroad company, and is one of the longest structures of the kind in the world, being 1½ miles in length, thus giving the railroad a deep water terminus. The shipments comprise redwood and pine lumber, shingles, potatoes, oats and barley. Steamboat daily to Eureka. Telephone to surrounding points. Stages daily, to Eureka 50 cts, North Fork 75 cts., Blue Lake $1.50, and Trinidad $2. Tel., W. U. Exp., W. F. & Co. Mail, daily. Jasper N. Davies, postmaster.

where in the state for productiveness, being a rich adobe sediment in the valley and sandy loam on the hills. In competition with the whole United States, this place secured the highest prizes offered by Philadelphia seedsmen for the largest beet, mangel and onion. The latter weighed five pounds and three ounces, and measured twenty-five inches in circumference. The minerals in this vicinity are specially valuable, consisting of chalk rock, bituminous rock, onyx and asphaltum. Of the latter there is an output of 400 tons per annum, of the purest quality. This sketch would be incomplete without a mention of the Newsom Warm Springs, 2 miles northeast of the town, now far-famed for the health-giving waters bubbling out of the earth at 100°, furnishing the most life-giving baths known. The Arroyo Grande, a stream of considerable size, flows through the village, and is capable of being utilized as a most valuable power. AUBURN. The county seat of Placer county was first settled as a mining camp in 1849, later was incorporated, then disincorporated, and is now about to reincorporate. It is a pleasant and very interesting place of 1,700 inhabitants, and being originally a mining town, the mines were nearly all located in the ravine through which runs what is called Auburn Ravine creek, consequently business sprang up in that locality, and has ever since been maintained there. The depot is about ¾ mile distant, close to which the leading hotels are located at an elevation of some 1,200 feet above sea level. Its principal buildings are the court-house, jail, county hospital, public school, normal college, Putnam House, Borland House, and Arlington Hotel. The churches sustained are Catholic, Methodist, Congregational and Episcopalian. The public school has 5 teachers, 250 scholars, and a library of 400 volumes. A new system of water works, with a pressure of 350 feet in the business part of the town, has recently been completed, which affords, together with the 2 hose companies, excellent protection against fire. A bank does business here, with a capital of $100,000, and 3 newspapers are published, the Placer county Republican, the Placer county Herald and the Placer Argus. Several gold mines in the vicinity are worked, and limestone of good quality is burned at the kilns 4 miles east and shipped from this point. Daily stages to Placerville, $3.50, Georgetown, $3, Coloma, $2.50, Greenwood, $2, and Pilot Hill; also to Forest Hill and Michigan Bluff daily, fares $3 and $4. Fruits and vegetables are the principal products. Tel., W. U. Exp., W. F. & Co. Mail, daily. J. H. Wills, postmaster.

CASTROVILLE. This town was founded in 1864 by J. B. Castro and others, who owned large tracts of land in the vicinity. It is in Monterey county, on the S. P. R. R., 8 miles from Salinas, the county seat and nearest banking point, 3 miles from Monterey bay, 109 miles from San Francisco by rail and 76 miles by water. It has a flour mill, extensive grain warehouses, Catholic and Union churches, 2 schools, 4 teachers and 200 pupils. It ships grain and potatoes by water from Moss landing. Population, 600. There is a hall here seating 400. The land in this vicinity is gently rolling, the soil of the best quality, being a black loam with sediment and adobe land. The R. R. station is about three quarters of a mile from the old town, and here a new town has been laid out recently and a number of lots sold, embracing the ground at the junction of the Monterey br. R. R. The transportation facilities of the town are excellent, having both railroad and water communication. Manuel R. Merritt, postmaster and real estate agent.

Terms, 10c. a Week Delivered by Carriers. By Mail, One Year $5.00.

CHICO WEEKLY CHRONICLE-RECORD

Published Every Saturday - - Terms, $2.50 a Year.

The Largest and Newsiest Weekly of Northern California.

These are a consolidation of the CHICO CHRONICLE, formerly published by Brown & Walker, and the BUTTE RECORD, published by George H. Crosette, the oldest paper in Butte County, and one of the oldest in the State. They are now owned, published and edited by The Chico Publishing Company, composed of the gentlemen whose names appear above, Chico, Butte Co., Cal.

Chico is the metropolis of the great County of Butte, situated on the California and Oregon Railroad, 96 miles north of Sacramento. It has a population of 5,000, and is rapidly growing, being the central point of the finest agricultural and horticultural region of Northern California. It is also the seat of the branch State Normal School and of the State Forestry Station. As an advertising medium the Daily and Weekly CHRONICLE-RECORD has no equal in the Northern part of California.

COLUSA. The county seat of Colusa county, was first settled in 1850, and occupies a beautiful site on the west bank of the Sacramento river, which affords transportation with San Francisco and Sacramento. It is a station on the Colusa and Lake Narrow Gauge R. R., 10 miles east of Colusa Junction on the S. P. R. R., being by rail 139 miles northeast of San Francisco, and 76 northwest of Sacramento. The town contains a bank with a capital of $500,000, two newspapers, the Sun and the Herald, published weekly, Catholic, Presbyterian and Methodist churches, two schools, with 8 teachers, and 500 scholars, a school library of 1,000 volumes, a flour mill, brewery, foundry, planing mill and machine shop, soda water works, and two lumber yards. The most notable buildings are those used for county and school purposes. The Colusa theater has seating accommodation for 400, and the town has gas and water works, and a good fire department. Shipments, wheat, wool and broom corn. Stages, daily; Arbuckle $2, Williams 50 cts., Chico $3.50, Marysville $3. Population, 2,500. Tel., W. U. and P. P. Exp., W. F. & Co. Mail, daily. Hiram H. CORONADO BEACH. This famous suburb of San Diego, up to 1886, was regarded as a sandy waste of no practical value, except as a water break to protect the harbor of San Diego, lying between that and the ocean. In two years, by the aid of ample capital and judicious advertising, the place is now dotted with beautiful cottages and substantial edifices, the most prominent of which is the Del Coronado hotel, said to be one of the largest in the world, costing about a million dollars. The Hotel Josephine is also a prominent structure, situated on the most elevated point of the peninsula, having a commanding view. Coronado Beach is still "disputed territory," as to whether it forms a part of the city of San Diego, or will become a separate corporation. It has a postoffice of its own, and yet is so intimately related to the larger town as to have nearly an identity of interest. It is connected with San Diego on one side by a steam-ferry running every 20 minutes; and on the other side by a motor railroad running along the sand spit through National city. There is here an excellent public school, two church organizations, with others in prospect.

EUREKA. The county seat of Humboldt county, is the principal shipping and trading point on the northern coast, being situated on the eastern margin of Humboldt bay, a fine land-locked harbor, 15 miles long, 3 wide, and with 75 miles of navigable channels, forming the most capacious harbor between San Francisco and Puget sound. Situated thus, and surrounded by resources but partially developed, Eureka is destined to be a city of great importance. Contiguous are immense forests of redwood, pine, fir, spruce, cedar, madrone, laurel, black, white and live oak. Stock raising, agriculture and fruit growing are carried on, and as the land is stripped of timber, it is seeded to grasses, and becomes first-class grazing land. The city is located on the Eureka & Eel River R. R., a standard-gauge road, reaching out to the valley of the Eel river, and is connected with the various towns and settlements in the county by good wagon-roads. Its principal manufactories are 6 lumber mills, door and sash factory, 2 molding mills, furniture factory, planing mill, iron foundry and tannery. The churches are, 2 Congregational, Episcopal, Methodist Episcopal, Baptist, Christian, Adventist and United Brethren. It has excellent educational advantages, having 11 public schools, with 18 teachers and an attendance of 2,000 pupils. Besides these it has the Eureka Academy and Business College, one of the best private schools on the coast. It has accommodations for 200 boarding and day pupils. A Catholic school for young ladies and the Eureka free library are also educational features of the city. It has 2 banks, gas and water works, a good fire department, 4 newspapers, the Times, daily and weekly, the Standard, daily and weekly, the Western Watchman, weekly, and the Mail, weekly. The assessed value of property of the city is $2,200,738. There are three places of amusement, Baird opera house, Russ hall and the Gaiety theater, seating capacity 600, 800 and 1,000 respectively. Telephone connection with Arcata. Semi-weekly steamers to San Francisco. Daily stages to Arcata and Freshwater. Shipments, lumber, butter, fish, live stock, wool and apples. Population, 7,500. Tel., W. U. Exp., W. F. & Co. Mail, daily. F. P. Thompson, postmaster.

FRESNO CITY. Fresno City situated on the S. P. R. R., 206 miles southeast of San Francisco, and in almost the exact center of Fresno county, of which it is the county seat. Its growth dates from the autumn of 1872; and the first year it consisted of a few rough shanties for trade, and dwellings around an equally rude railroad depot. In 1874 the county seat was removed thence from Millerton, and the beautiful and commodious court-house, which still adorns the city, was built at a cost of $70,000. For the first 6 or 7 years, Fresno's growth was slow, but operations were in progress around in matters of irrigation, and planting of orchards and vineyards, that soon stimulated its interests and progress. In 1880, the town contained about 1,100 inhabitants, then a new start was given, that in six years increased the population to 5,000. In 1885 Fresno was incorporated a city of the 5th class, governed by a board of trustees; since then its progress has been still more rapid, bringing its present population up to 8,000, and causing it to be one of the largest commercial depots in the state. It has heretofore had but one R. R., but now a branch road is in construction, leading to the eastern mountains and far south, near the foothills, into a vast region of grain, lumber and minerals. Another projected R. R. from the west, the Page, Wilbur, Paulsell R. R., is now graded to within a dozen miles of the city, that is to give it a new route both to San Francisco and to the far east. Other new lines are projected, which when built will make Fresno one of the leading R. R. centers of the state. The city has also a daily stage connecting with Centerville, 18 miles east, tri-weekly to the toll-house 30 miles, Oleander 7 miles, Hildreth 30 miles, Yosemite Valley 90 miles; a weekly to White's Bridge 20 miles and Hamptonville 20 miles. Fresno has good religious and educational institutions, nine religious denominations, the Episcopal, North and South Methodists, Baptist, Congregational, Presbyterian, Catholic, Christian and Adventist. Seven of these have commodious churches, while the Presbyterians and Adventists are preparing to build, the former at a cost of $10,000, and the latter at a cost of $30,000 for church and missions. The city at present contains 1,100 children of school age, with an average attendance of 700; and has for its corps of teachers, a principal, vice-principal and 13 subordinates; it has a fine schoolhouse, which cost $15,000, and is about to build two more at a cost of $12,000 each; it also has a successful business college and two popular kindergarten schools. The press of Fresno is represented by the veteran Expositor, daily and weekly (D.), Republican, daily and weekly (R.), Democrat, weekly (D.), and the Daily Tribune (Ind.), all able papers, with a large and rapidly increasing circulation. The city is well represented by the various bodies of social and secret societies; an encampment of Odd Fellows, 2 lodges of Knights of Pythias, a lodge each of the Free and Accepted and Royal Arch Masons, and a commandry of Knights Templar; it also has a lodge of Good Templars, a G. A. R. Post, a parlor of the Native Sons and another of the Native Daughters, 2 groves of the Ancient Order of Druids, a lodge of the Order of United Workmen, a chapter of the Eastern Star, a lodge of Knights and Ladies of Honor, a post of the Blue and Gray Veterans, the first ever organized, a council of the order of Chosen Friends, a branch of the Young Men's Christian Association, a Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and several other moral and religious institutions. It has also an efficient Board of Trade, allied with the State Board of Trade, doing much for the progress of city and county. The city has already 5 large popular hotels, the Grand Central, Southern Pacific, Russ House, Ogle House and the Tremont, another, the Hughes Hotel, is nearing completion, at a cost of $150,000, one of the finest in the state outside of San Francisco; it also has a large and attractive Masonic Temple, an Opera House, an Armory Hall, a new City Hall, an imposing jail building just completed. It maintains an efficient voluntary fire department, with two excellent steam engines. It has large gas works, and an electric light plant of 100 lights; excellent water is distributed through the city from 4 wells and cisterns, of a capacity of 1,500,000 gallons per day; it also has an extensive telephone system. It has 2 horse-car roads in operation, another building and charters for 3 more, these are all designed to lead out into the vineyards and orchards on all sides of the city. The city is also preparing to establish an extensive system of sewerage. For its private industries Fresno has 2 planing mills, 2 machine shops, 1 flour mill with a capacity of 200 barrels per day, 4 carriage factories, 3 lumber yards, 6 grain warehouses with a capacity of 25,000 tons, 2 immense fruit packing houses that employ over 1,000 hands during the fruit season, an ice factory, a winery and soap works. It has in operation the First National Bank, with $100,000 paid up capital, and a circulation which in three years has increased from $118,000 to $536,000, and a surplus of $45,000; the Farmers' Bank, with a paid-up capital of $100,000, and a surplus of $10,000; the Fresno Loan and Savings Bank, with a paid-up capital of $300,000; the Bank of Central California, with a paid-up capital of $120,000; and the Fresno National Bank, just starting, with a capital of $100,000, a building and loan association incorporated for a capital of $300,000. These banks have lately established a Clearing House Exchange, with a daily business of about $30,000. Fresno has at present not less than 40 or 50 large and commodious brick business blocks 2 and 3 stories high, with several others in process of construction, many other brick structures still larger and more costly are contemplated, including 3 new bank buildings, a large family hotel, an elegant opera house, an Odd Fellows' Temple, an extensive new depot, with large plant, with round house and machine shops, costly sanitarium or water-cure establishment, 2 new school-houses, and extensive buildings for a hospital, and county's poor house. The present contemplated business and public streets will cover an outlay of not less than $250,000, while not less than from 400 to 500 new dwelling houses are in process of erection, or will be built during the year, costing from $1,000 to $15,000 each. The assessed valuation of Fresno in 1887, real and personal, was $2,400,000 and this will probably be increased the present year up to from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000. The shipments from here the last year amounted to 73,000,000 lbs.; it included 350,000 20-lb. boxes of raisins, 2,000,000 gallons of wine and brandy, 750 tons of dried grapes, 800 tons of dried orchard fruits, and vast quantities of grain and live-stock. The present growth of Fresno city in size and commerce promises to soon make it one of the largest and most important cities of the state. Tel., W. U. Exp., W. F. & Co. Mrs. M. C. No other place on the Pacific Coast offers better inducements to those seeking good investments for homes or speculation, than Fresno County, which produced about one-half of the entire raisin crop of 1887, or 7,200,000 pounds.

The cheapest land in ordinary fruit culture will be worth from Four to Six Hundred Dollars an Acre in five years. Fresno County has the best and cheapest water supply in California. The City of Fresno has a population of about 8,000.

FRESNO COUNTY

FRESNO COUNTY lies in the heart of the San Joaquin valley, with an area of 8,000 square miles, the third in size in the state; two thirds mountains and foothills and one third level plain, with two large rivers, the San Joaquin and the King's river, flowing from the heights of the Sierra Nevada range on the east westward over the plain, with abundant water the year around to irrigate its 1,000,000 of arable acres of as fine quality as can be found in the state. Its climate is naturally very dry and temperate; its average annual rainfall, six inches; its mean temperature, 65°; its plains exceedingly dry, and fit only for the sparsest grain or grass crop and for a poor and scattered population. But fourteen years ago a few venturesome capitalists began a vast system of irrigation. Huge canals were constructed, and the waters of the adjoining rivers brought into conjunction with thousands of acres of the valley land, and soon agriculture began to flourish with marvelous growth, transposing the barren plains into thousands of the most productive orchards, vineyards and farms of grain and stock in the world. Fresno county has now 900 miles of public irrigating canals, with water for 60,000 acres of land, which may be doubled at small cost. Usually each lot of land has a water right annexed to it at a cost of five dollars per acre and a yearly tax of sixty-two and one half cents for support of ditches, the water being brought to each section, where the owner receives it and uses it at his pleasure.

Fresno county is noted for its colony system, not less than a dozen of these now existing adjoining the city of Fresno, containing an aggregate of 30,000 acres, mostly divided into twenty and forty acre farms. These maintain no exclusive class of citizens, but have as heterogeneous and independent a class as any agricultural section, although each colony usually has its own schools and churches. There are in the county 96 school districts, with 120 teachers and a school census of 7,717 children. The school expenses of the current year are $100,000. Both grain and stock raising have a prominent place in this county. In 1887 it was among the third order of counties of the state in its grain crop of 2,500,000 bushels. It also maintains vast herds of cattle, sheep and swine. Its chief and rapidly growing interests lie, however, in its orchards and vineyards, the present area of the former being about 5,000 acres and the latter 10,000, — 7,000 in raisin grapes, and 3,000 in wine grapes. Its raisin produce in 1887 was 350,000 twenty-pound boxes, an increase of 100,000 over the year before, and one half the crop of the state; its wine and brandy product, 2,000,000 gallons, an increase of 500,000; its various orchard products between 5,000 and 6,000 tons, an increase of three times over any previous year. This, from the rapid extension of orchards and vineyards, will be increased from three to four fold in the next few years. The entire shipment from the county in 1887 was somewhat over 200,000,000 pounds, one third going from Fresno City. The valuation of its products fell scarcely below $6,000,000.

Fresno county's population ten years ago was about 6,000; it is now 30,000 and rapidly increasing. Besides the important and fast-growing city of Fresno, the following towns and depots of trade demand notice: Minturn, a railroad town with depot and postoffice on the northern border of the county with several large vineyards surrounding it; Berenda, the junction of the Yosemite Valley R. R. with the main line; Madera, a town of 1,000 inhabitants, with a large hotel, the Mace House, several large brick stores, a good school-house, two churches, a fine Masonic Temple, an engine-house and a weekly newspaper; here are also the headquarters of the Madera Trading and Flume Company, with extensive planing-mills and factories, and an output of business last year of $350,000; Borden, a small railroad station with depot, hotel and postoffice; Sycamore, close to the banks of the San Joaquin, with postoffice and several buildings. On the south of Fresno City is Maloga, with hotel, postoffice and school-house; Fowler, a growing business center, with stores, hotels, fine school-house and new church; Selma, a rapidly growing town of about 1,800 inhabitants, with several large brick stores, a flour-mill, a bank, daily and weekly newspaper, The Selma Irrigator (Democratic), four or five churches, a fine school-house costing $6,000, several hotels, the chief the Whitson Hotel, just built at a cost of $50,000, several social and secret societies; Kingsburg, of about 300 inhabitants, close to the Kings river, with several hotels, a good school-house, a church and other important buildings for public and private uses. Away from the railroad in the mountain district is Centreville, 18 miles east from the city of Fresno, with postoffice and several stores, school-house and church; Millerton, on the San Joaquin river, 20 miles distant, with postoffice, stores and school-house; Hildreth, a large and rapidly growing mining camp of great promise, 30 miles north of Fresno City, with hotel, postoffice, stores and school-house; Fresno Flats, 60 miles north of Fresno City, in the mountains on the Yosemite valley road, with a postoffice, two hotels, several stores and a good school-house.

Fresno county contains in its eastern mountain range 1,000,000 acres of as fine timber as can be found in the state or country. A flume sixty miles long already brings large supplies of this to the railroad at Madera. Its full output of lumber in 1887 was about $500,000; but works are in progress to more than double this amount, and prepare for some of the largest lumber manufactories in the state. In this lumber region in the heart of the Sierra range are two groves of the Big Trees (Sequoia gigantea) of the largest number and size of trees yet discovered, General Grant, the king of them all, girting 140 feet.

The mineral resources of Fresno county in the lower range of the Sierras are among the most promising and productive of the state. The output the last season was about $350,000. Several mines just developing have lately gone into the ownership of some of the wealthiest and shrewdest mining experts of state and country, at a valuation among the hundreds of thousands, and new discoveries are being made weekly that give high promise of wealth. On the western border of the county in the Coast range of mountains mineral bodies of coal and gypsum have lately been discovered; also strong indications of the existence of vast quantities of petroleum and natural gas.

Fresno county stands already among the wealthiest and most promising of agricultural counties of the state, with a climate for health and comfort equal to any and superior to most, with the assurance of soon becoming first in population, resources and general prosperity.

GRASS VALLEY. Is beautifully located on the western slope of Sierra mountains, 2,400 feet above the sea level, in Nevada county, and is a station on the Nevada County Narrow Gauge R. R., 5 miles southwest of Nevada City, the county seat, 69 northeast of Sacramento, and 159 northeast of San Francisco. It was first settled in 1849, and incorporated as a town in 1861. The prosperity of the town is due to the rich quartz gold mining carried on in the vicinity, which gives employment to hundreds of men. It is also becoming quite a health resort, which, together with its agricultural and horticultural resources, will constantly increase its importance. There are 6 churches, Methodist, Congregational, Episcopal, Catholic, Christian and African M. E. The public schools, of which there are 12, have 21 teachers and 1,200 pupils. The other features of the town are 5 hotels, 2 daily newspapers, a theater, 2 banks, a foundry and 2 machine shops, 4 breweries, 2 planing mills, broom factory, and 3 carriage and wagon makers. The town is lighted by electricity and gas, has good water-works, also a volunteer fire department of two companies. Assessed value of property, $920,929. Tel., W. U. Exp., W. F. & Co. Daily stage to Nevada City and Marysville. Population, 5,000. Miss Florence Byrne, postmaster.

IRVINGTON. Dating as a settlement from 1850, when it was called Washington Corners, is situated on Alameda creek, in Washington township, Alameda county. It is a station on the San Jose branch Western div. S. P. R. R., 16 miles north of San Jose, and 34 southeast of San Francisco. The location, climatically considered, is one of the best in the state, as evidenced by the increasing shipments of fruit, vegetables, grapes, wheat, barley, hay, wines and brandy. The famous Bodega winery is here, having a storage capacity of 1,500,000 gallons, and fine thoroughbred French merino sheep are raised in the vicinity. The R. R. freight shipments for the month of February, 1888, reached 2,000,000 lbs. The foothills are fast being cultivated to the vine, fig, olive, lemon, walnut and orange. A neat church building has been finished recently, the public schools are equal to any, while Washington college is not excelled by any interior college in the state. Banking facilities at Oakland or San Jose. Telephone, all points on Sunset T. T. Co.'s lines. Population, 500. Stages to Mission San Jose 5 times daily, fare 25 cts. Tel., W. U. Exp., W. F. & Co. LAKE COUNTY. See descriptive sketches of counties, pages 89 to 110.

LAKEPORT. The county seat of Lake county, is located on the beautiful Clear lake, 30 miles northeast of Cloverdale, the nearest shipping point, to which there are daily mail stages. The city is located at an altitude of 1,400 feet above sea level, on the west side of the lake, close to which is the business portion, while the residences occupy delightful positions on the hills. It is on the proposed line of the San Francisco, Clear Lake and Humboldt R. R., and is a thriving city, the trade center of an extensive farming region in the "dry wine" district of the state, and is the principal place in one of the finest scenic and mineral spring regions in California. The principal features of the city are 2 banks, a flouring and a planing mill, 2 weekly newspapers, the Democrat and the Avalanche, churches of the Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian, Christian and Catholic denominations and good schools. In the vicinity some gold and silver mines have recently been opened with promising results. Coal and quicksilver also abound. Grain, vegetables and fruit are shipped. Tel., W. U. Exp., W. F. & Co. Daily stage fares, Cloverdale $4, via Kelseyville and Highland Springs, tri-weekly to Calistoga $5, Ukiah $3.50, Lower Lake $3. Mail, daily. J. R. Cook, postmaster.

LOS ANGELES. The recent very rapid growth of this southern metropolis has now brought it up to be the second city of California in population and importance. It is the county seat of Los Angeles county, and is situated on the river of the same name, about twenty miles inland from the Pacific Ocean. Although but recently brought into prominent notice, this is one of the oldest cities of California, having been organized as a town (or pueblo) of Neuestia Señora de Los Angeles in September, 1781. The founders of the town were twelve honorably discharged Spanish soldiers and their families, and even up to as late as 1850, the population was almost entirely Spanish, although the city was occupied and organized by the Americans in 1846. And even as late as 1870, the city might have been called almost a typical Mexican one, with its numerous adobe buildings, sleepy population of 8,000, and inactive, provincial business methods. But a change came with the advent of the Southern Pacific Railroad in 1876, when the new American Los Angeles started on an era of growth and prosperity unexampled in the history of any city; until it reached a population in 1888 of not less than 65,000. It is the center of the railroad system of southern California. The S. P. Co. has the following lines here: Los Angeles to Yuma, 248 miles; to San Francisco via Sumner, 482 miles; to Santa Barbara, 77 miles; to San Pedro, 25 miles; to Santa Ana, 34 miles; to Santa Monica, 18 miles. Then there are the Achison, Topeka & Santa Fe, the Atlantic and Pacific, and the California Southern, all reaching in here in one way and another. This city has also another outlet by the Pacific Ocean to all parts of the world by P. C. S. S. Co.'s steamers to San Francisco, 389 miles.

All the religious denominations are represented. The number of churches are as follows: Advent 1, Baptist 5, Catholic 3, Christian 1, Congregational 4, Episcopal 4, English Lutheran 1, German Evangelical 2, Methodist 8, Methodist (South) 1, Methodist (colored) 1, Presbyterian 5, Swedish 1, Unitarian 1, Welch 1. The Young Men's Christian Association is in a very prosperous condition, and has in course of erection a handsome edifice on Fort and Second streets, 105 by 70, four-storied brick, with brown stone front, to include a hall seating 775 persons, library, reading-rooms, gymnasium, baths, etc., the whole to cost upwards of $100,000.

The educational facilities of this city are excellent. Public school buildings are wisely distributed all over the city, there being 120 teachers and over 5,000 pupils. One of the three state Normal schools is located here, in a building costing $60,000. For higher education there is the University of California, with its 6 colleges, 5 seminaries, and an observatory, having a total valuation of $3,650,000, to which is attached a medical college. Then there is the Los Angeles University, under the control of the Baptist denomination, the St. Vincent college, exclusively for boys, a Catholic institution, the Occidental university, just building by the Presbyterians, the Hanna college and the Ellis Villa college, both exclusively for girls.

The city has a free public library of 6,500 volumes.

The principal shipments are oranges and citrous fruits, raisins, wine, wool, barley, borax and general merchandise. In manufactures the city has not kept pace with its growth, although there are foundries, machine shops, planing mills, etc., that are creditable.

The assessed value of real estate for 1887 was $27,803,924.

The bonded indebtedness, $434,000.

There are a number of very fine business blocks, and more are rapidly going up. The city rejoices in electric lights, gas-works and four different systems of water-works, with an efficient fire department.

The street railways are mainly horse-power, which is soon to be largely replaced by cable and electric roads. Two cable roads and one electric are now running. Motor lines are accommodating the travel in and to the remote suburbs. The telephone system is also in operation here.

The land in the vicinity of Los Angeles is varied in quality, but will produce unexampled crops with proper irrigation and cultivation. Almost every variety of grain, vegetable, fruit, nut or berry produced in temperate or semi-tropical latitudes flourish here. Apricots, nectarines, prunes, grapes, pomegranates, English walnuts, almonds and olives are among the established products.

The city itself covers 36 square miles, and in it may be found every variety of location and scenery. There are warm sheltered valleys in which the banana ripens, high mesas with commanding views over plain and hills.

Los Angeles can boast of ten large banking institutions, with an aggregate capital of $2,500,000, and on the first day of January, 1888, the total deposits in these banks were $13,522,000. (For list, see banks and bankers.)

The daily press of this city will easily cause a New Yorker to feel at home with the familiar newsboy's cry on the streets of Times, Tribune and Herald, the first two Republican and the last Democratic. And then in the evening is the Express, Telegram, Advertiser and Sun, with the News Item, the last a daily evening journal in East Los Angeles. The weekly papers are the Censor, Prohibition; Christian Advocate, South M. E. church organ; La Cronica, Spanish; L'Union Nouvelle, French; East Side Champion; Porcupine; Sued-California Post, German; World, society; Commercial Bulletin, financial; Sou. Cal. Christian Advocate, Methodist; Trade Journal; and Churchman, Episcopal. And the following monthlies: Rural California, agricultural; Sou. Cal. Practitioner, medical; and the Pacific Fruit Grower.

The city has 555½ acres of land within its limits dedicated to the public as parks.

Any sketch of Los Angeles would be incomplete without mentioning the fact that one element conducing to its marvelous growth is its great reputation the world over as a desirable health resort. A country lying in the same latitude with the Carolinas, with as warm a summer sun, and yet having none of the same oppressive debilitating heat. From this it is saved by the tempered ocean trade-winds coming pure for thousands of miles over salt water. So there is a warm sun with a cool air and consequent cool nights. One picks ripening figs and bananas, growing in his own door yard, and then goes to sleep under thick bed-clothing. The warm yet not debilitating day furnishes one of the requisites in a climate for invalids; the cool, restful nights, with their possibility of refreshing sleep, furnish the other. So the city and all the surrounding country is thronged with new arrivals in all conditions and circumstances in life. Many are wealthy, and make large investments. A large number locate and build homes, until in 1887 there were $10,000,000 worth of new buildings erected in this immediate vicinity. Exp., W. F. & Co. Tel., W. U. Edward A. Preuss, postmaster.

WHY?

Why has the "New High Arm Davis" so rapidly and securely taken the front rank among Sewing Machines? The fact that it occupies that position is freely acknowledged, but the reasons are not so well understood, except by those familiar with the machine.

It is simpler in construction—having a less number of working parts than any other machine.

It is made of the best materials, and in the most workmanlike manner. It is light running.

Its simplicity, and the ease with which the details of its operation can be mastered, brings its best features within the reach of the most inexperienced.

It has the greatest number of attachments, all automatic in their action, for doing every desirable style of work.

It has the "Vertical Feed,"—a novel principle in Sewing Machines—which enables it to do all kinds of work more perfectly and with greater facility than other machines, and many kinds of work entirely beyond the capacity of any other machine in the world.

It has built its pre-eminence on solid merit, and because it is entirely unlike, and better than its rivals.

New York, N. Y. Los Angeles, Cal.

Columbia Gas Machine, Coal Gas Generators, Gas Engines, Gas Pumps, Dynamos, Arc and Incandescent Electric Lamps, Gas and Electric Plants for Power, Heat and Light for Residences, Hotels, Factories, Railroads, Etc.

INCANDESCENT ELECTRIC LIGHTING PLANTS

Are now Practical and Economical by

THE L. E. FISH SYSTEM

Of producing Electric Energy, and the cost of Plants within reach of all owners of buildings who wish power or light at a cost of less than one-half of any other system.

The Columbia Gas Machine, manufactured by L. E. Fish at factories in New York, N. Y., Cincinnati, Ohio, San Francisco, California, and Los Angeles, California, is used to produce a fuel gas for heating and for use in gas engines; the fuel gas costs less than fifty cents per thousand cubic feet, being the cheapest, most convenient and safe fuel for heat and power. Illuminating gas is also produced by the "Columbia" at a cost of from fifty cents to one dollar per thousand cubic feet. The light being superior to coal gas, and can be consumed in any way desired, viz: Incandescent lights, open burners or Argand burners. The cost of light is no more than oil for lamps for equal light. This illuminating gas may also be used for cooking and heating purposes, at less expense than wood or coal by many consumers.

Gas pumps, for supplying water from wells, operated by gas made by the "Columbia," are superior to the uncertain wind mills and expensive tanks. Gas pumps cost less to operate than steam pumps; can be started instantly, and by any person. Any capacity required can be furnished, from two hundred gallons per hour to one thousand gallons per minute.

Gas heating stoves, cook stoves, ranges for hotels, etc., which will cost less to operate than any wood or coal burner, can be supplied at low prices to our patrons.

MONTE VISTA

THE most beautiful valley in California is that of Monte Vista, situated twenty miles north of Los Angeles, and four and one-half miles east of Roscoe Station, on the Southern Pacific R. R., upon the slope just eastward of the mouth of the Big Injunga River in the great pass between the San Fernando and San Gabriel Valleys; to the north the main range of the Sierra Madres, to the south the Verdugo Mountains, to the east the summit of the Great Divide, and to the westward in full view, the great San Fernando Valley. The general slope is to the south and west. The tract contains 2,300 acres. The water supply is abundant, and is piped to the land. The general elevation is 1,500 feet above tide water. The soil is chiefly a rich loam, having special adaptation to the growth of all citrus trees, figs, olives, vines, and most deciduous fruits. The climate in Summer is 6° to 10° cooler than that of Los Angeles, and in Winter is about 10° warmer. Two good hotels are conducted by the owner of the tract. Twenty-eight miles of streets, seventy-five feet wide, are being opened and graded. Hundreds of acres are being planted in fruit and ornamental trees.

Communication with Los Angeles is made four times a day at present, but will shortly be increased to six or ten times a day when the new motor road from Roscoe to Monte Vista is completed. The time is now only one hour from the City.

For persons in ill health, Monte Vista is the most desirable surburban resort on the Coast, both on account of its perfect climate and the most superior quality of the food supplies of the hotels, which are the best conducted in the State for the comfort and health of guests. Prices of land and full particulars furnished on application to the Proprietor,

DAILY and WEEKLY

HERALD

123 NORTH SECOND STREET

The Leading Paper of Southern California.

Will devote its columns to furthering the interests of Los Angeles City and County and the southern portion of the State. It is the intention of the publishers to make THE HERALD a newspaper of the day, complete in all its details, and in every department full and reliable. The editorial columns will discuss all live issues of the day. The telegrams, by arrangements newly effected, will be the fullest and most exhaustive to be found in any paper of the State, not being surpassed by those of the San Francisco dailies. The local columns will contain a complete resume of local happenings and all matters of home interest.

Twelve Page Editions on Sundays

MARYSVILLE. The county seat of Yuba county, was laid out in 1849, and incorporated as a city Feb. 5, 1851. It is 52 miles north of Sacramento, 142 northeast of San Francisco, and is on the Oregon div. of the S. P. R. R., also is the southern terminus of the Northern California R. R., which runs north 29 miles to Oroville. The city lies at the junction of the Yuba with the Feather river, the latter being navigable for light-draught steamers, and together with its railroad facilities is very advantageously situated for commercial purposes. It contains churches of the Catholic, Presbyterian, Methodist, Episcopal, Evangelical Lutheran, African Methodist, and Baptist denominations, public schools, with a staff of 10 teachers and 420 pupils, the college of Notre Dame and several other private schools. Commercially speaking, Marysville has a larger trade than any other town north of Sacramento. The woolen mill here employs over 100 hands, and the flour mill about 50, with a capacity of 550 barrels per day. The local mercantile houses do an immense trade, the country tributary being prosperous and constantly increasing in wealth. Two newspapers are published, the Appeal and the Democrat, both daily and weekly. The banks are Rideout & Smith's, capital $300,000, and Decker, Jewett & Co., $100,000. Assessed value of real and personal property, $2,000,000. Principal buildings, City Hall, County Court-house, Water Works, Buckeye Mills, Woolen Mills, Cathedral and College of Notre Dame. Theater here seats 500. It has gas, electric light and water works, also a paid fire department. Stages daily to Colusa, fare $3; Grass Valley and Nevada City, $3; tri-weekly to Camptonville and Downieville, fares $6 and $10; tri-weekly to Strawberry Valley and La Porte, $6 and $8. Tel., W. U. and P. P. Exp., W. F. & Co. Population, 6,000. Mail, daily. Thomas Farrell, postmaster.

MERCED. The county seat of Merced county, is situated on the S. P. R. R., 152 miles from San Francisco, and 115 southeast of Sacramento. It is in the center of very rich agricultural and fruit-growing district, which has the promise, since the recent construction of the reservoirs and canals, at the cost of several millions of money, of being rapidly taken up in small holdings, and thus increasing very materially the wealth and importance of this fast-growing place. One reservoir, now completed, is located 5½ miles from Merced, and covers an area of one section of land, is 30 feet deep, inclosed by a dam 3,000 feet long, and will contain sufficient water to flood 30 sections of land to a depth of one foot. With other reservoirs now under construction, there should at all times be sufficient supply for the irrigation of the surrounding district. The town contains, amongst its features, 2 Presbyterian, 2 Methodist and a Catholic church, a public school, with 6 teachers and 350 pupils, a planing mill, wagon works, foundry, 3 banks, water and gas works, volunteer fire department and 4 newspapers, the Argus, daily and weekly, the Herald, the Exprcss and the Star, all weekly. Assessed value of real and personal property, $1,188,875, with no bonded indebtedness. The court-house, constructed at a cost of $75,000, is a very handsome building, surrounded by neatly kept grounds, while the public school, costing about $20,000, is also a fine structure. The others of note are the MODESTO. The county seat of Stanislaus county, lies near the Tuolumne river, and is a station on the S. P. R. R., 114 miles east of San Francisco, 77 south of Sacramento, and 30 south of Stockton. The town was laid out in 1870, was made the county seat in 1872, and incorporated as a city in 1884. It is situated in a section of fine wheat-growing country, and is the center of trade and shipping point for a large extent of territory. The churches here are Methodist, North and South, Presbyterian, Episcopal, Congregational, Baptist, Catholic and Christian. Two public schools are maintained, with 9 teachers and 600 pupils. Its chief manufactories are a planing mill, flour mill and a foundry. The principal buildings are the court-house, erected at a cost of $60,000, the county hospital and the business blocks. Rodgers Hall has seating accommodations for 500. There are two banks doing business here, and the same number of papers published, the Herald and the daily and weekly News. A system of irrigation for the district surrounding Modesto, comprising 108,000 acres, is under consideration, with good prospects of being carried out, which will be the means of enhancing values of real estate and otherwise benefiting the city. The city has gas and water works, volunteer fire department and telephone connection. Shipments, chiefly wheat, hides, fruit and wool. Stage daily to Hill's Ferry; tri-weekly to Coulterville, Sonora, Oakdale, Knight's Ferry, Chinese Camp, Waterford and La Grange. Tel., W. U. Exp., W. F. & Co. Population, 2,500. Mail, daily. Charles H. Finley, postmaster.

MONTEREY. This quaint old city, the ancient capital of California, is situated in Monterey county, on the bay of Monterey, 20 miles north of Salinas, the county seat, 125 miles south of San Francisco by the S. P. R. R., and 85 miles by sea, P. C. S. S. Co. The bay is a fine sheet of water, opening out into the Pacific ocean, 25 miles across at the mouth, and is noted as a resort for boating, fishing and bathing. It was discovered by Spanish explorers in 1542. The city was first settled as a Spanish Catholic mission June 3, 1770, captured by the Americans July 7, 1846, and the stars and stripes hoisted on the custom-house, which still stands, said to be the first American flag raised on Mexican territory on this coast. It was incorporated as a city in 1851. For many years this was the seat of government for California under Spanish and Mexican rule, and many of the old governors lived, died and were buried here. The first constitutional convention to organize this into an American state was held in the old capitol, which is still standing, and is now used for the public school. The irregular streets, lined with a large number of adobe buildings and crumbling adobe walls, give the city a venerable and foreign aspect, and this is heightened by the prevailing Spanish dialect, heard on every hand. The city contains Catholic, Episcopal and Presbyterian churches, a good public school, with 5 teachers and 230 pupils. The school has a well-selected library of 2,500 volumes, a disbanded library association having turned over its valuable collection to the public school. The shipments are grain, flour, fresh fish and dairy produce. A greater variety of food-fish are caught here than in any other part of the country. Population of the city, including Pacific Grove, claimed to be

AMERICA'S FAMOUS SUMMER AND WINTER RESORT.

"Where a leaf never dies in the still blooming bowers,
And the bee banquets on thro' a whole year of flowers."

Opinions of Distinguished Statesmen, Citizens, Writers and Travelers.

EX-PRESIDENT R. B. HAYES.—We shall always remember our visit to Monterey as one of the most agreeable episodes of our lives. We shall never forget that lovely hotel among the trees and flowers; and the climate—it was a perfect summer's day on the verge of winter.

GENERAL W. T. SHERMAN.—I consider Monterey, with its "Hotel del Monte," the most delightful place I have ever visited.

THE PRINCESS LOUISE (to the Manager of the Hotel del Monte)—You have the most beautiful place, and the cleanest and the best kept hotel that I have ever visited in my travels. (LORD LORNE also expressed himself in about the same terms, and said that he was greatly pleased with his visit to Monterey.)

JOHN W. MACKAY.—There is nothing in Europe that can at all compare with it.

HON. P. DEUSTER, of Milwaukee.—I consider it incomparable in all respects.

The late GOVERNOR FENTON, of New York.—I can only picture Monterey and its delightful hotel and grounds as a paradise.

LAWRENCE BARRETT.—I have just returned from Paris—cracked up, you know, for the excellency of its coffee; but I have never in life tasted such delicious coffee, or had such an inviting early breakfast, as I got while at the "Hotel del Monte."

PAUL OEKER, In New York Staats-Zeitung.—There is no doubt about its superiority over all Italian or Floridian resorts as a sanitarium.

CORRESPONDENT OF THE "BOSTON HOME JOURNAL."—"The Hotel del Monte" is the most beautiful hotel I ever saw. I can see one hundred acres of lawn and flowers from my window, while the air is fragrant with the perfume of roses, violets, heliotropes, and other flowers.

A. J. O. IN "BOSTON TRANSCRIPT."—My pen fails me here in this entrancing spot, and I can only hint at its grandeur and beauty.

"MANCHESTER (N. H.) MIRROR.—The half had not been told us of this famous resort.

A. DAVIS, GEN. SUPT. QUEBEC DIVISION CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY CO.—We shall never forget Monterey and its matchlessly beautiful Hotel del Monte. We cannot express our admiration for the magnificent and paradise-like grounds about the hotel and the seventeen-mile drive. We were favored with very fine weather, and after having seen most of the civilized world, both in Europe and on the Continent of America, I am obliged to say Del Monte is the most superb and the most beautiful place I have ever seen. With its heavenly climate, which is so invigorating and pleasant to live in, I cannot help but think of it daily since my return. I am really feeling blue after having been through your country. The climate of California, and especially of Monterey, is so magnificent and enticing that I fear very much it will be a long time before I can again be satisfied with Canada.

EDWIN BOOTH.—This is the brightest, cleanest and prettiest place I have ever seen. Nothing can compare with it.

JOSEPH PULITZER, editor and proprietor N. Y. World.—The charms of the hotel and climate at Monterey have not been exaggerated—they cannot be. Del Monte has no equal.

HON. BEN WOOD, editor and proprietor N. Y. News.—I should never have believed that such a beautiful place existed, had I not come out and seen for myself.

THE MARQUIS OF QUEENSBURY.—There is no place in the World so beautiful and attractive as the Hotel del Monte and its gardens and its seventeen mile drive. Nature and art have done the best they could together.

DON CAMERON.—I got great relief while in California. Its winter climate is lovely and spicy and healing. California abounds in charms and surprises; and its greatest, and the one we shall remember the longest, is the Hotel del Monte at Monterey.

THE LATE GENERAL GEO. B. McCLELLAN.—I shall never cease to think of the beauties of the Hotel del Monte and its lovely grounds.

MRS. JAMES BROWN POTTER.—I have never been so fascinated with a place as with Del Monte, and my only regret is that I could not have stayed longer. I shall never forget any of its beauties or other attractions—the hotel itself, the grounds, the flowers, the lawns, the trees, the seventeen-mile drive, and the delicious warm salt water baths at the pavilion. Who ever could forget such a fairy spot?

MARY E. BLAKE, IN "ON THE WING."—The three or four days we spent at Monterey made altogether the pleasantest memory we had of California. The place itself is hard to classify because of its exceeding loveliness. We had nothing at home that approaches the exquisite setting of this exquisite house. The Pacific, all along this coast, wears constantly that dazzling sapphire blue, which we see at home only at special times; the sky carries out the same superb color with a glow and depths of sunshine superadded, which is almost too brilliant for belief.

"HARTFORD EVENING POST."—It is simply a miracle of beauty. Everything that refined taste can suggest, or that wealth, aided by nature and art, can secure, is here to add to the charmes of this delightful spot.

JON. J. POWELL, ENGLISH TRAVELER.—There is no place on the Pacific Coast more replete with natural charmes than Monterey. The Hotel del Monte is one of the most elegant watering-place establishments in the world.

DR. C. B. CURRIER, IN N. Y. MEDICAL TIMES.—As a winter resort it is simply incomparable. * * * Its "Hotel del Monte" is not excelled, if equaled, in regard to magnificence, elegance and comfort, by any hotel in Europe or America.

CORRESPONDENT OF (LONDON) ANGLO-AMERICAN TIMES.—Monterey stands at the head of the list, and may be justly termed the "Queen of American Watering Places."

JAMES CHARLTON, G. P. AND T. A. CHICAGO & ALTON R. R.—It exceeds all praise and my highest expectation. I shall never forget the beautiful Del Monte, its lovely and tasteful surroundings; the sea drive with its invigorating breeze; the odors of the pine grove, the charm of the cypress grove, and other glories and attractions of the place.

N. H. CHITTENDEN, THE TRAVELER.—Monterey presents a combination of attractions and advantages unequaled by any other seaside resort in the World.

CORRESPONDENT PHILADELPHIA MEDICAL AND SURGICAL REPORTER.—Of the many Pacific Coast resorts, I consider that Monterey stands at the head of the list.

A. McNALLY, OF RAND, McNALLY & CO., CHICAGO.—I consider the Hotel del Monte, at Monterey, the ne plus ultra of all things in its line, while the reasonableness of its charges greatly surprised me. Its grounds cast all other like accessories in the shade.

H. R. HOBART, EDITOR RAILWAY AGE.—It is well called the "Queen of American Watering Places." In beauty of surroundings, elegance of finish and appointment, and completeness of architectual effect, the Del Monte, as a resort for health and pleasure, is unequaled on the continent.

in the city, is about 2,300. The recent improvements are Bagby's Opera House, a fine amusement hall seating 700 persons, the new Del Monte hotel and other buildings. The city has a good fire department, telephone communication, and excellent water is piped from the head waters of the Carmel river, 25 miles. The best of transportation facilities are afforded by both land and water, there being two passenger trains a day, and more than an average of a steamer a day lands at the wharf. The land in this vicinity is rolling and largely covered with pine woods, a rare thing on the California coast. The soil is varied, but productive. Coal has been discovered in the hills near the city, and about 3 miles west there is found a superior quality of sand for glass manufacturing, The climate, soil and fame of the watering-places are attracting the attention of settlers, and lands are offered at a moderate figure. The press is represented by the Monterey Argus, conducted by George F. Clevenger, a tidy-looking sheet issued every Saturday. Exp., W. F. & Co., tel., W. U., both represented by J. B. Snively. MONTE VISTA.

The most beautiful valley and the most delightful climate in Southern California.

Elevation 1500 feet above tide water. Atmosphere dry—no fogs.

In the midst of mountains, a valley of itself, having southerly and westerly exposures.

The temperature is 6° to 10° cooler in Summer and 10° warmer in Winter than in Los Angeles.

The soil is a rich, sandy loam, especially adapted to Oranges, Olives, Figs, Prunes, Grapes, and most decidious fruits.

The water supply is abundant and is piped to the land.

Twenty-eight miles of street, 75 feet wide are being graded.

An immense acreage of fruit is being set out by the proprietor, who is also beautifying the tract as rapidly as possible.

Two good hotels are also conducted by the owner of the tract and are unsurpassed for excellence of the food and general accommodations.

A Methodist Church with regular services supplies the religious requirements.

A daily mail is received and sent out, communications with Los Angeles is now had twice a day, the time for the trip being about one hour. This will soon be reduced to 40 minutes on the completion of the Electric Railway from Roscoe Station to Monte Vista, 4½ miles. The distance from Los Angeles to Roscoe by the Southern Pacific is 15½ miles. For full particulars address, Central Pacific R. R., 76 miles from Sacramento, and 166 miles from San Francisco. It was first settled in 1849 and in 1856 was incorporated as a town. Its business interests are dependent, to a great extent, upon the gold-mining, both quartz and hydraulic, carried on in the neighborhood, and is also a supply-distributing point for the numerous mining towns in the vicinity, while the agricultural and fruit-growing land of the county is attracting considerable attention. There are two foundries and machine shops, one sash and door factory, three wagon manufactories, one planing mill, four breweries, four hotels, one bank, two daily newspapers, the Daily Transcript and The Daily Herald. Maltman's Pioneer Chlorination Works, located on Grass Valley turnpike, have been in operation 30 years, and were the first works of this description established in California. There are five churches in the city, Congregational, Methodist, Catholic, Episcopal and Baptist, and three public schools, having an average attendance of 800 pupils, with a staff of thirteen teachers. The court-house is a very handsome structure. An excellent system of water-works, with a volunteer fire department, consisting of two companies, afford the city ample protection. The Nevada Theater, seating capacity 800, the Armory Hall, Masonic and Odd Fellows', are all substantial structures. The city is well lighted by electricity and gas. No bonded indebtedness. Assessed value, $808,085. Stage lines daily to North Bloomfield, Moore's Flat, Graniteville, North San Juan, Camptonville, Pike City, Forest City, Downieville, Sierra City, Marysville and Grass Valley; tri-weekly to Washington, Maybert, Dutch Flat and Omega. Population, 5,000. Mails, three times daily. Money-order office. W. U. Tel. Wells Fargo Express. Postmaster, Calvin R Clarke.

OAKLAND. The county seat of Alameda county, is situated on the east side of San Francisco bay, opposite the great metropolis of California, to which it bears the relation of a delightful suburb, being famous as the most attractive and in every way the finest residence location on the continent. It is 6 miles across the bay from the city, with which it has constant communication by ferries. Here are located some of the best-known educational and philanthropical institutions of the state, notably the California Military Academy, the Pacific Theological Seminary, Field Seminary for Young Ladies, Snell Sem-Hopkins Academy, Depue Academy, the Convent of Our Lady of the inary, The Oaks Sackett School, Sacred Heart, the Home for the Adult Blind, a state institution, and the Dominican Brothers' School. These are situated within the city limits; outside of that, in the township of Oakland, there are a number of prominent institutions, which are mentioned under their respective postoffices. The principal religious denominations having churches here are the Presbyterian, Roman Catholic, Episcopal, Methodist, Congregational and Lutheran. Many of these structures are, architecturally speaking, all that could be desired in beauty of design and in interior arrangement. Climatically, Oakland has no peer; it is simply delightful, free from fogs, and yet near enough to the coast to have the invigorating sea air. Amongst its prominent business features are 5 banks, and the following-named newspapers are published: the Enquirer daily, the Times daily, the Weekly Times issued Thursday, the Tribune daily, and the Weekly Tribune issued Saturday. The city has all the requisites of a prosperous city, both in regard to business enterprises and as a residence location, having rapid transit in all directions, well-paved streets, perfect drainage system, good public buildings, water and gas works, electric-light plant, a fire department and street railways. Tel., W. U. and P. P. Exp., W. F. & Co., N. P. Pacific and local. Population, 55,000. Mail, daily. James L. Hanna, postmaster.

OCEANSIDE. Is situated in San Diego county, on the Cal. Southern R. R., at the junction of the Cal. Central and San Luis Rey Valley R. R., just south of the Grand Temecula canon, 42 miles north of San Diego, the county seat. The town is built on a bluff, sixty feet above the ocean. The country tributary to Oceanside consists of the productive valley of the San Luis Rey, containing thousands of acres of fertile land adapted to citrus and deciduous fruits. Fine brick blocks have been erected and others contracted for. It contains 3 churches, a school house, 2 banks, a newspaper, the Star, and 2 hotels. The Oceanside Wharf Co. are building a wharf 1,500 feet in length. The San Luis Rey Flume Co. will soon furnish a supply of pure water. As a place of residence Oceanside has few equals, the climate being mild and uniform throughout the year. Population, 1,000. Tel., W. U. Exp., W. F. & Co. Stage to San Luis Rey daily. S. OROVILLE. The county seat of Butte county, is the terminus of the Northern California R. R., 29 miles north of Marysville, 79 north of Sacramento, and 170 northeast of San Francisco. It is on the east bank of the Feather river, at the base of the Sierra Nevada, and was one of the first settled towns of central California, being in early days a famous mining town, the gold yield in the vicinity reaching a million yearly. There are many rich mines yet, but citrus fruit culture, and in fact all kinds of fruit culture, is now the prominent feature of the vicinity. Being in the warm belt, at the base of the Sierras, with abundant water and a healthy climate, with half a million acres of fine fruit land surrounding it, Oroville is rapidly growing in population and wealth. The town contains Methodist, Episcopal, Congregational churches, public schools, with 6 teachers and 350 scholars, a bank, 2 newspapers, the Mercury issued daily and weekly, and the Register weekly, excellent gas and water works, a good fire department, and Union Hall, seating 800. The principal buildings are the Court-house, school building, I. O. O. F. and Masonic halls and the churches. Gold, silver and coal are found in the

THERMALITO COLONY

Oroville, Butte County, California

The Home of the Orange, Olive, Vine and Fig.

In this famous Colony Tract there were 1440 lots offered for sale June 8, 1887. But 550 of these lots ain, in which an investment of only $360 is sure to secure you an admirable town lot 50x150 feet, and secure a hotel now being erected at a cost of $20,000.

erms Easy, $30 Cash and Balance in Monthly Installments of $15 per Month

Outside of the Association, Thermalito offers land with the following advantages:

1. The most healthy location in Butte County, outside of the mountains. This is substantiated by act that a location for the Butte County Infirmary was selected there by prominent and well-posted ens.

2. The soil cannot be surpassed for fruit culture, being a rich, red gravelly loam, strongly im- nated with mineral and from six to twenty feet deep, and has 10,000 flourishing orange trees from one n years old on the tract.

3. Its water supply and facilities are unequaled, its supply being 3,600 inches, and conducted in pipes e tract under a pressure of from 75 to 150 feet, which is sufficient not only for irrigation, but for nd household purposes. This water is furnished free for three years, and after that at the low rate of ents per inch (miners' measurement) for twenty-four hours.

4. The value of the land is rapidly increasing. It is now offered at $100 per acre, while much of it been resold at $150. TERMS OF SALE—One-third cash, one-third in one year, and one-third in two at eight per cent. per annum.

5. The Company hesitate at no outlay that will prove advantageous, and furnish labor on the for purchasers, and will plant and care for your groves at cost.

6. The location of the tract for scenery is unsurpassed. It has gained the name of "The Beautiful," ustly so; it is also called "Wonderland."

PACIFIC GROVE. This is a religious seaside resort in Monterey county, after the plan of Ocean Grove, or Martha's Vineyard on the Atlantic coast. The Chautauqua assemblies, religious encampments and conventions for moral reforms are held here. The place was first opened by an association of the Methodist church in 1875, and they still have moral and prudential control, but the material interests went into the hands of the Pacific Improvement Company in 1880. It is about 2 miles from Monterey, the nearest railroad station, 22 miles from Salinas, the county seat, 125 miles from San Francisco by rail and 85 miles by sea. It is located on Monterey bay, and has excellent facilities for bathing, boating, fishing, driving, etc. It has a large new hotel, an Episcopal church costing $3,500, and a Methodist church is building that will cost $20,000. There is a public school, with 2 teachers and 65 pupils, and a library of 500 volumes. The permanent population is about 700. The important shipment is a sand for glass manufacturing, said to be the best in the country. The place has a fire department and water-works. Stages to Monterey, fare 25 cts. The newspaper is the Del Monte Wave, monthly. The land is rolling, sloping toward the ocean, and covered with a beautiful pine growth, which continues down to the water's edge,—a circumstance unknown to any other part of this coast. Exp., W. F. & Co. Tel., W. U. Robert G. Mitchell, postmaster.

PASO ROBLES. This place has an extended fame for the springs of the El Paso de Robles (the pass of oaks), which are hot sulphur, and located in the center of the town, flowing water at 110° at the rate of 4,500 gallons per hour. They were known to the old mission padres, and were thought by the Indians to be endowed with miraculous healing properties. Paso Robles is situated in San Luis Obispo county, on the Salinas river and the S. P. R. R., 29 miles north of San Luis Obispo, the county seat. It has a new Methodist church, a school house, with 2 teachers and 115 scholars. Shipments are grain, fruit, live-stock and lime. Manufactures embrace a brick yard, a planing mill and lime works. Population, 600. It has a public hall, seating 250, and water-works. Land in the vicinity is fertile, and well adapted to fruit-tree and vine culture. The city has a bank, two weekly newspapers, the Moon and The Leader. Stages to San Luis Obispo, fare $3. Exp., W. F. & Co. Tel., W. U. Patrick H. Dunn, postmaster.

PLACER COUNTY. See descriptive sketches of counties, pages 89 to 110.

PLACERVILLE. The county seat of El Dorado county, dates as a settlement from 1849, and was incorporated as a city in 1854. It is now the terminus of the Sacramento & Placerville R. R., 149 miles northeast of San Francisco, and 59 east of Sacramento. This is one of the oldest settlements in the mining regions, and its location, 1,800 feet above the level of the sea, in a broad basin amidst the mountains, make its specially attractive and salubrious. Amongst the prominent features of the city are 4 churches, Methodist, Presbyterian, Episcopal and Catholic, two schools, with five teachers and 275 scholars, 2 libraries, good water works, a volunteer fire department, the court-house, opera house seating 900, 2 sash, blind and door factories, a foundry and machine shop, a flour mill, 2 breweries and a fruit-box factory. Three newspapers are published, the Mountain Democrat, the Observer and the Republican. The land contiguous is well adapted to fruit and vegetables, and in the immediate vicinity are slate and sandstone quarries. The assessed valuation of real and personal property is $460,000, and the bonded indebtedness is $100,000. Daily stages to Auburn $3, via Granite Hill, Coloma, Lotus and Pilot Hill; tri-weekly to Georgetown $2, via Kelsey and Garden Valley; tri-weekly to Grizzly Flat, via Newtown, Pleasant Valley, Fairplay and Mendon; tri-weekly to Plymouth $2.50, and weekly in summer to Lake Tahoe, fare $8. Population, 2,000. Tel., W. U. Exp., W. F. & Co. Mail, daily. James Tyson, postmaster.

POMONA. This pleasantly situated and prosperous town is located in Los Angeles county, 33 miles east of Los Angeles, the county seat, and is on the lines of the S. P. R. R., Cal. Central (Santa Fe system), and the Pomona & Elsinore, the latter being a local road. It was first settled in 1875, incorporated as a city in 1887, and was platted under the homestead association system, town lots being located in the center and gradually increasing in size to farm lots, according to distance from the center of the settlement. It is the center of trade for a large section of splendid country, and has all the requisites of a large and growing town, making it a desirable business and residence location. Religion is represented by the following denominations: Congregational, Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist, Catholic, Episcopal, Lutheran, Christian, Methodist (South) and Unitarian. There are four public and two private schools, the former having 17 teachers, with an attendance of 700 pupils. Of manufactories the most prominent are two planing mills, two pipe works, two large wineries, cannery, a fruit evaporator and a brick yard. The prominent buildings are Pomona Bank and C. E. White's bank buildings, Brown's Hotel, Taylor's Opera House, seating capacity 500, and the Hotel Palomares, one of the finest in the state, erected at a cost of over $100,000. The recent building and other improvements during the past 6 months aggregate $300,000. It is well lighted with gas, has a good system of waterworks, a fire department, expects shortly to have electric lights, has horse and motor street railways and telephone connection with Los Angeles and other points within reasonable distance. Three banks do business here, the Pomona National Bank, the First National and the People's Bank. The newspapers are the Times-Courier, daily and weekly, and the Progress, weekly. The present population is variously estimated at from 3,800 to 4,200. Daily stages to Claremont, 10 cts., Lordsburg, 25 cts., La Verne, 25 cts., Chino, 25 cts., South Riverside, 50 cts. Tel., W. U. Exp., W. F. & Co. Mail, daily. Phil Stein, postmaster.
